Fighting Deindustrialisation Andy Clark, 2022-09-15 In Fighting Deindustrialisation Andy Clark outlines and examines one of the most significant and under researched periods in modern Scottish labour history Over a fourteen month period in 1981 and 1982 as Scotland suffered the effects of the accelerated deindustrialisation of its economy three workforces refused to accept the loss of their jobs The predominantly women assembly workers at Lee Jeans Greenock Lovable Bra Cumbernauld and Plessey Capacitors Bathgate were informed that their multinational employers had taken the decisions to close their plants At each site a battle was fought against capital movement corporate greed and unfair job loss The workers occupied their factories and refused to vacate until their demands were met and closure avoided At all sites this objective was achieved none of the factories completely closed following the women's occupations In this book these occupations are analysed together for the first time through a range of analytical frameworks from oral history memory studies industrial relations scholarship and deindustrialisation studies In his extensive examination Clark argues that the actions of 1981 82 should be considered as one of the most significant periods in Scotland s history of deindustrialisation However the public memory of 1981 82 is precarious Fighting Deindustrialisation begins the process of incorporating women s militant resistance within academic and popular understandings of working class activism in later 20th century Scotland

Weather, Migration and the Scottish Diaspora Graeme Morton,2020-10-28 Why did large numbers of Scots leave a temperate climate to live permanently in parts of the world where greater temperature extreme was the norm The long nineteenth century was a period consistently cooler than now and Scotland remains the coldest of the British nations Nineteenth century meteorologists turned to environmental determinism to explain the persistence of agricultural shortage and to identify the atmospheric conditions that exacerbated the incidence of death and disease in the towns In these cases the logic of emigration and the benefits of an alternative climate were compelling Emigration agents portrayed their favoured climate in order to pull migrants in their direction The climate reasons pressures and incentives that resulted in the movement of people have been neither straightforward nor uniform There are known structural features that contextualize the migration experience chief among them being economic and demographic factors By building on the work of historical climatologists and the availability of long run climate data for the first time the emigration history of Scotland is examined through the lens of the nation s climate In significant per capita numbers the Scots left the cold country behind yet the homeland remained an unbreakable connection for the diaspora
