Heath Clark Lectures, 1971 Anthropology and Epidemiology C. Janes, R. Stall, S.M. Gifford, 2012-12-06 Over the past two decades increasing interest has emerged in the contributions that the social sciences might make to the epidemiological study of patterns of health and disease Several reasons can be cited for this increasing interest Primary among these has been the rise of the chronic non infectious diseases as important causes of morbidity and mortality within Western populations during the 20th century Generally speaking the chronic non infectious diseases are strongly influenced by lifestyle variables which are themselves strongly influenced by social and cultural forces The understanding of the effects of the behavioral factors in say hypertension thus requires an understanding of the social and cultural factors which encourage obesity a sedentary lifestyle non compliance with anti hypertensive medications or other prescribed regimens and stress Equally there is a growing awareness that considerations of human behavior and its social and cultural determinants are important for understanding the distribution and control of infectious diseases Related to this expansion of epidemiologic interest into the behavioral realm has been the development of etiological models which focus on the psychological biological and socio cultural characteristics of hosts rather than exclusive concern with exposure to a particular agent or even behavioral risk Also during this period advances in statistical and computing techniques have made accessible the ready testing of multivariate causal models and so have encouraged the measurement of the effects of social and cultural factors on disease occurrence Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1968 First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70 National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1965 The National Union Catalogs, 1963- ,1964 Behavior and Environment A. Esser, 2012-12-06 The International Symposium on The Use of Space by Animals and Men sponsored by the Animal Behavior Society took place at the 135th Annual Meeting of the AAAS in Dallas Texas on December 29 31 1968 This book presents the text of all papers and edited discussions as well as the contributions made by several individuals who were unable to attend the Symposium The idea of holding the Symposium evolved following my presentation of a paper to the Animal Behavior Society in 1965 2 on the use of space by psychiatric patients Members in attendance at that session chaired by G Gottlieb shared his interest in my compilation of human data presented in a measurable spatial context This pleasant experience persuaded me that a discussion of space might be shared as a frame of reference which could open avenues of communication between behavioral scientists the design community and the decision makers in our society Red Mites and Typhus J.
