Quaternary Sea-level Variation, Shoreline Displacement, and Coastal Environment G. Victor Rajamanickam, M. J. Tooley, 2001 The Book Is A Study Of Interglacial Sea Level And Coastal Environment Changes The Record Of Sea Level Changes On Continental Shelf Coral Reefs And Sea Level Changes Sediment Sources And Sinks In Coastal Zones Particularly Sand Dunes And Estuaries During The Holocene Coastal Changes Associated With Seismic Events And Storm Signatures And El Niño Events And Their Impacts On Coasts

Sand Dunes of the Northern Hemisphere Qi Lu, Mahesh K. Gaur, Victor R. Squires, 2023-03-10 This book in two volumes and with a foreword by the renowned Professor M A J Williams draws on evidence from coastal and inland regions including desert dunes wind blown dust river and lake sediments glacial moraines plant and animal fossils isotope geochemistry soils and prehistoric archaeology to better understand the genesis and development of dunes systems in selected northern hemisphere sand dunes from Asia Africa and the Middle East regions The collection of research papers and case studies that are presented in this book provide the reader with a wealth of information about the distribution and types of sand dunes and an insight into the complexity of sand dune formation migration and management Research in many countries across the northern hemisphere shows that dunes whether coastal or inland are under pressure around the world Much of the pressure comes from human activities and the anthropogenic disturbance when coupled with global warming and alterations to the amount frequency and temporal distribution of precipitation could lead to more serious management challenges in the future There is much that we still need to find out about the origin genesis and development of sand dunes so that they can be managed better The difficult and complex questions being repeatedly raised can be answered only by interdisciplinary endeavours Geomorphologists geologists palaeontologists climatologists ecologists and others can work together on research projects that better define the origin evolution and development of dunes both inland and along the coasts Many chapters in this book attempt to reconstruct past climatic changes in deserts and their margins at a variety of scales in space and time in the expectation that such information might assist in preparing us for future global warming and drying

The Indian Ocean Tsunami Tad S. Murty, U. Aswathanarayana, Niru Nirupama, 2006-12-14 The Indian Ocean tsunami of December 2004 is considered to have been one of the worst natural disasters in history affecting twelve countries from Indonesia to Somalia 175 000 people are believed to have lost their lives almost 50 000 were registered as missing and 1.7 million people were displaced As well as this horrendous toll on human life

GRAIN MORPHOLOGY OF PLACER ILMENITES IN ANDHRA PRADESH COAST (Textural and Ore microscopic studies) A. A. JAYARAJ, 2023-11-25 India is provided and blessed especially as by inheritance or nature with long coastline of over six thousand kilometers actively protective and covering a wide area both east and west coasts This endowed coastline is marked by distinctly varied coastal environments like beaches dunal belts

swampy environments lagoons deltas estuaries etc The continuous in flux of naturally processed material that settle as sediments brought by a number of streams and rivers draining the hinterland are the main source for the rich and valuable heavy solid homogeneous inorganic substances having a definite chemical composition as mineral deposits The beach and sand ridges as dune sands of east and west coasts of India contain many economically important alluvial deposits as placer sand deposits These minerals include ilmenite rutile garnet zircon monazite and sillimanite A number of auspicious factors like source rock geology coastal geomorphology effective drainage network and favorable climatic conditions influenced the formation of rich placer deposits in beach and dunal environments

Transforming Coastal Zone for Sustainable Food and Income Security T.D. Lama,Dhiman Burman,Uttam Kumar Mandal,Sukanta Kumar Sarangi,H.S. Sen,2022-08-09 Coastal areas are commonly defined as the interface or transition areas between land and sea including large inland lakes Overall about 50 70 % of the global population live within 100 km of the coastline covering only about 4 % of earth s land thereby drawing heavily on coastal and marine habitats for food building sites transportation recreational areas and waste disposal The people of these zones depend mainly on low productive agriculture due to several constraints such as prolonged water logging and drainage congestion in predominantly low lying areas with heavy soils during the wet season preponderance of saline and acid sulphate soils scarcity of good quality irrigation water particularly in the dry season seawater intrusion into adjoining lands and water pollution due to eutrophication and others affecting the aquatic habitats etc Carbon sequestration in coastal areas such as marshes lagoons etc has significant influence on soil quality and the carbon pool in soils as well as their impacts on the environment Over and above these the coastal areas are prone to disasters due to climate change leading to colossal loss of lives and properties in many areas Forestry and mangrove dynamics in particular because of their continuing diminishing nature are also subjects of interest affecting the ecology of coastal zones requiring appropriate attention The international symposium held in this context on Transforming Coastal Zones for Sustainable Food and Income Security in virtual mode in March 2021 offered scope to present and discuss various thematic areas by eminent scientists from all over the world The proceedings of selected papers presented reflect cross sectoral views of the areas highlighting wherever necessary a fusion of technologies with the ultimate target to suggest livelihood security and sustainable development for the sensitive coastal zones The book intends to share the knowledge with researchers academicians and various other stakeholders to address the complex problems of coastal regions production constraints social economic technical and environmental issues to draw out strategies for resilient agricultural technologies and improving livelihood security in coastal agro ecosystems

Twelfth International Diatom Symposium Herman van Dam,2013-06-29 The Twelfth International Diatom Symposium stressed how diatoms can be used to assess the human impact on natural waters without neglecting other important fields of research As the frustules of many diatom species are relatively resistant to dissolution they are preserved in freshwater and marine sediments and provide a record of past environments on earth In past decades they have been successfully used to reconstruct changes in water bodies evoked by changes in salinity acidification and eutrophication In the last few years diatom inferred predictions of environmental variables have become much more quantitative In the most recent research reports the strong separation between palaeolimnological and neolimnological diatom research is fading as palaeolimnologists are increasingly using modern calibration sets to infer past states of the environment This quantitative approach is also very suitable for prediction of future changes in the biota of surface waters Also ecological changes due to climatic modification have been investigated more thoroughly recently A very important new research topic is the occurrence of toxic diatoms particularly along the coasts of North America These proceedings are intended to be a balanced view of such modern developments in diatom research They should also be of interest to non specialists in diatoms who can use the results of diatom research as a tool in a more general taxonomic ecological and geological context

Sea-level Change in Mesolithic Southern Scandinavia Peter Moe

Astrup,2018-12-17 The seabed in southern Scandinavia contains numerous traces of a submerged landscape that is thought to be the remnant of a once important habitat for Mesolithic hunter gatherers Large parts of this landscape were gradually flooded by rising seas between 9500 and 4000 BC and perceptions of the Maglemose culture 9500 6400 BC have consequently been based almost exclusively on former inland settlements As a result Early and Late Mesolithic societies have been understood as almost diametrically opposed with regards to their reliance upon marine resources and their degree of sedentism The main objective of the book is to investigate two questions that are directly related to our current understanding of the populations of the now submerged areas 1 Do we have a representative picture of the spread of Early Mesolithic sites in southern Scandinavia or does the weighting towards inland sites reflect the fact that coastal sites have not been identified below present day sea level 2 How did sea level changes impact Mesolithic populations at different temporal and spatial scales and how were these experienced from 8000 4000 BC The book presents an extensive and up to date review of various types of evidence from the Boreal period such as faunal remains fishing instruments $\delta^{13}C$ values in bones settlement positions and available marine resources These are used to discuss the extent to which marine resources were utilised in the Maglemose culture Another central component of this book is a series of new coastline models made to determine the Mesolithic sea level changes coastline positions The eight new coastline models are created to facilitate new evaluations of possible relationships between sea level changes and cultural changes On the basis of the new coastline models the book also presents the preliminary results of 47 diver investigations conducted with the aim of identifying potential coastal settlements from the Maglemose culture

America's Most Vulnerable Coastal Communities Joseph

T. Kelley,Orrin H. Pilkey,J. A. G. Cooper,2009-01-01 Sea level is rising and yet Americans continue to develop beaches with little regard In this volume a group of coastal geologists discusses the startling saga of ten U S East and Gulf Coast shoreline communities plus Puerto Rico and some western Europe strands and the problems created by their inevitable interaction with natural processes in this highly dynamic geologic environment The authors discuss the geologic context of the hazards of each site as the history of societal responses and their environmental impacts Response to the natural coastal processes that threaten lives and buildings is carried out in a context of local state and national politics with fixed short term engineering solutions beach replenishment seawalls generally favored over longer term approaches moving back prohibition of seawalls This essential GSA Special Paper foreshadows the impending rise of sea level and the myriad of shoreline responses and political controversies it will provoke Publisher s description Late Quaternary Sea-level Changes Yunshan Qin,Yün-shan Ch'in,Songling Zhao,Sung-ling Chao,1987 The Diatoms E. Smol,2001-07-19 Timely synopsis of applications in environment and industry using ubiquitous microscopic algae Climate Change, Disaster and Adaptations Azizur Rahman Siddiqui,Avijit Sahay,2022-02-26 This volume examines how local communities respond and adapt to ecological changes and disasters resulting from climate change The main aim of the book is to understand the range of human responses to ecological change and to contextualise the reasons for adopting any particular adaptive strategy by a community Through the help of specific case studies presented as individual chapters the book aims to find out whether adaptation due to environmental stress is an individual decision and therefore is an isolated phenomenon or if resilience and adaptation are part of the same action paradigm of society as a whole in response to environmental change Of particular interest are the case studies of climate change or disasters that have rendered the site unsuitable for the return of its community at present and thus necessitated the relocation of such communities to new locations The case studies in the book focus on regions in India but cover different parts of the world as well and address concepts of resilience vulnerability risk adaptation and mitigation The book will be useful for students and researchers in the fields of geography disaster management environmental science and anthropology Rock Coast Geomorphology D.M. Kennedy,W.J. Stephenson,L.A. Naylor ,2014-08-20 Rocky landforms dominate large portions of the world s coast Cliffs and shore platforms form spectacular landscapes yet when compared to other landforms they are relatively unstudied with many contemporary controversies dating back to the mid nineteenth century The past decade has seen a reinvigoration of research driven by advances in technology that now enable precise measurements of erosion to the micron scale and quantification of wave energy onto and through cliff edifices to be made as well as being able to directly date rock surfaces In order to integrate this diverse range of research this volume s regional approach first integrates the latest data with longstanding theory and then analyses this research through the boundary conditions that exist in each area The volume brings together the research leaders in the field includes chapters on nearly all the major rock coasts of the world and identifies future research needs Quaternary Depositional Environments of the Pacific Coast Michael E.
