Y. Leong, 2002 You don't have to look very far these days to see the influence that the film industry of Hong Kong has had on moviemaking around the world Hong Kong film stars such as Jackie Chan Chow Yun fat Jet Li and Michelle Yeoh have become household names headlining Hollywood blockbusters while directors such as John Woo Tsui Hark and Wong Kar wai are closing deals in Tinseltown and developing huge international followings. Despite achieving such recognition abroad, the luster on Hong Kong's homegrown film industry has faded quite a bit over the past decade. However, many Hong Kong cinema aficionados who passionately followed the rise of the Hong Kong New Wave during the Eighties and early Nineties only to become increasingly disenchanted since then, are now looking to South Korea for Asia's boldest and most innovative films. Since 1998, South Korea's local film industry has undergone a remarkable transformation. A new generation of Korean moviemakers is revitalizing the industry with bold arthouse productions, big budget actioners, thought-provoking dramas, and subversive satires. In some circles, South Korea is even being likened to the new Hong Kong, with its film industry on the verge of exploding onto the world stage, similar to how the Hong Kong New Wave catapulted the former British colony and its groundbreaking films into the international spotlight. Already, some Korean films have found success in the North American market, arthouse circuit, while Korean directors are being courted by major Hollywood studios for lucrative U.S. remake rights.

Korean Cinema: The New Hong Kong is a guidebook for exploring this new and exciting treasure trove of cinema. It is the first book of its kind, covering this emerging cinematic powerhouse in an easy-to-read and leisure-focused fashion, bringing all the sought-after information on Korean cinema into one convenient package. Within the pages of Korean Cinema: The New Hong Kong, you will find a brief history of South Korea and its film industry, which will help you understand the reasons behind the revolutionary changes in Korean cinema and what is influencing the country's directors. A look at the present state of Korea's filmmaking industry and how it resembles the dot-com era, with the only difference being that these companies are actually making money and lots of it. An examination of the characteristics, themes, and dominant genres of the films in this newest Korean New Wave. In-depth reviews and commentary of the top ten must-see films of this latest Korean New Wave. An overview of the top genres of Korean cinema, with reviews, commentary, and notes on availability for the good, the bad, and the ugly. A look at the stars of Korean cinema, such as the Korean equivalents to Tom Cruise, Han Suk-kyu, and Julia Roberts, Shim Eun-ha. How moviegoers can go about seeing Korean flicks with English subtitles, too. So sit back, relax, and get ready to be introduced to Korean Cinema.

The New Hong Kong Comments about the book: It's designed for people who are in the process of discovering Korean film, and it's especially useful for people who are building DVD collections. Anthony approaches the industry as a fan of Hong Kong cinema who has gravitated towards Korean films in recent years. 266 pages in total, so there's a lot of information. I'd recommend it. Darcy Paquet, koreanfilm.org, Screen International correspondent and English language editor for the Korean Film Commission. Anthony Leong has taken the study of Asian Cinema to the next level. This book helps make sense of Korean cinema. It's an authoritative text yet thoroughly entertaining while being the definitive word of this exploding motion picture.

New Korean Wave Dal Jin, 2016-03-15. The 2012 smash Gangnam Style by the Seoul-based rapper Psy capped the triumph of Hallyu, the Korean Wave of music, film, and other cultural forms that have become a worldwide sensation. Dal Yong Jin analyzes the social and technological trends that transformed South Korean entertainment from a mostly regional interest aimed at families into a global powerhouse geared toward tech crazy youth Blending analysis with insights from fans and industry insiders Jin shows how Hallyu exploited a media landscape and dramatically changed with the 2008 emergence of smartphones and social media designating this new Korean Wave as Hallyu 2.0 Hands on government support meanwhile focused on creative industries as a significant part of the economy and turned intellectual property rights into a significant revenue source Jin also delves into less studied forms like animation and online games the significance of social meaning in the development of local Korean popular culture and the political economy of Korean popular culture and digital technologies in a global context New Korean Cinema Shin, A Cultural Interpretation of Korean Cinema, 1988-1997 Seung Hyun Park, 2000 The New Korean Cinema Kyung Hyun Kim, 1998 Korean Cinema, 2008 Seoul Searching Frances Gateward, 2012-02-01 Seoul Searching is a collection of fourteen provocative essays about contemporary South Korean cinema the most productive and dynamic cinema in Asia Examining the three dominant genres that have led Korean film to international acclaim melodramas big budget action blockbusters and youth films the contributors look at Korean cinema as industry art form and cultural product and engage cinema's role in the formation of Korean identities Committed to approaching Korean cinema within its cultural contexts the contributors analyze feature length films and documentaries as well as industry structures and governmental policies in relation to transnational reception marketing modes of production aesthetics and other forms of popular culture An interdisciplinary text Seoul Searching provides an original contribution to film studies and expands the developing area of Korean studies The South Korean Film Renaissance Jinhee Choi, 2011-07-21 For the past decade the Korean film industry has enjoyed a renaissance With innovative storytelling and visceral effects Korean films not only have been commercially viable in the domestic and regional markets but also have appealed to cinephiles everywhere on the international festival circuit This book provides both an industrial and an aesthetic account of how the Korean film industry managed to turn an economic crisis triggered in part by globalizing processes in the world film industry into a fiscal and cultural boom Jinhee Choi examines the ways in which Korean film production companies backed by affluent corporations and venture capitalists concocted a variety of winning production trends Through close analyses of key films Choi demonstrates how contemporary Korean cinema portrays issues immediate to its own Korean audiences while incorporating the transnational aesthetics of Hollywood and other national cinemas such as Hong Kong and Japan Appendices include data on box office rankings numbers of films produced and released market shares and film festival showings The Journal of Korean Studies, 2006 New Korean Cinema, 2014 The past two decades saw Korean cinema establishing itself as one of the most vibrant national cinemas in the world Scholars have often sought clues in democratization in the early 1990s Yet the overall condition of Korean cinema had remained hardly promising until the late 1990s which urges us to rethink the euphoria over democratization In an effort to find a better account for its stunning and provocative revival this dissertation challenges the custom of associating the resurgence of Korean cinema with democratization and contends that Korean cinema has gained its novelty and vitality above all by confronting the abortive nature of democratic transitions. The overarching concern of this study is thus elucidating the piquant tastes of the thematics and the styles Korean cinema has developed to articulate public discontents with recent historical changes. Chapter one revisits the New Wave era, the late 1980s to the early 1990s, and employs the notion of ssitkim (mourning) to probe how New Wave filmmakers maneuvered between legacies of the democracy movement and public industrial demands and between historical trauma and rapid changes in the wake of democratization. Chapter two discusses Korean cinema's reorientations in the second half of the 1990s through films by Lee Chang-dong and Hong Sang-soo. Lee's investment in the non-linear time narrative offers a notable instance of renegotiations over national history at a time of troubled historical transition. Hong's rediscovery of everyday life without good sense and depth presents an eloquent commentary on the post-epic milieu. Chapter three adopts Deleuze's notion of the originary to explain how the revenge narrative and the theme of violence in Park Chan-wook's films provide a significant critique of the democratized and neo-liberalizing milieu where the faculty of action becomes further frustrated. Chapter four looks to the Manchurian Western, a vernacular hybrid film genre, to investigate how the Western has been an integral part of sociocultural formations in South Korea and thereby to demonstrate the need to step beyond restrictive frameworks such as historical and cultural authenticity for a greater understanding of the complex dynamic in transnational uses of popular genres.

Seoul Stirring, 1994. A Look Inside South Korean Cinema. Korean Culture and Information Service (South Korea), 2015-01-05. Hollywood films may dominate the world's box offices today, but in Korea it's the homegrown product that has been capturing the public's attention. Korean films industry today and look inside of directors and stars. Korean film directors were getting major press at the world's different film festivals. Exports were booming and the films that reached overseas audiences found a warm reception there.
