Constructing Human Rights in the Age of Globalization Mahmood Monshipouri, Neil Englehart, Andrew J.

Nathan, Kavita Philip, 2015-06-01 Both human rights and globalization are powerful ideas and processes capable of transforming the world in profound ways. Notwithstanding their universal claims, however, the processes are constructed and they draw their power from the specific cultural and political contexts in which they are constructed. Far from bringing about a harmonious cosmopolitan order, they have stimulated conflict and opposition. In the context of globalization, as the idea of human rights has become universal, its meaning has become one more terrain of struggle among groups with their own interests and goals. Part I of this volume looks at political and cultural struggles to control the human rights regime that is the power to construct the universal claims that will prevail in a territory with respect to property, the state, the environment, and women. Part II examines the dynamics and counterdynamics of transnational networks in their interactions with local actors in Iran, China, and Hong Kong. Part III looks at the prospects for fruitful human rights dialogue between competing universalisms that, by definition, are intolerant of contradiction and averse to compromise. Asia-Pacific Transfer Pricing Handbook

Chinese Migrations Diana Lary, 2012-06-08

The current waves of migration sweeping the Chinese world may seem like new phenomena the outcome of modernization and industrialization However this concise and readable book convincingly shows that contemporary movements are just the most recent stage in a long history of migration both within China and beyond its borders Distinguished historian Diana Lary traces the continuous expansion and contraction of the Chinese state over more than four millennia Periods of expansion which involved huge movements of people have been interspersed with periods of inward turning stasis Following a chronological framework the author discusses the migrations themselves and the recurrent themes within them We see migration as a broad spectrum of movement from short term and short range to permanent and long range and as a powerful vehicle for the transfer of commodities culture religion and political influence The Confucian tradition treated migration as undesirable It praised the delights of staying at home A thousand days at home are good half a day away is hard Lary argues that despite this view migration has been a key element in the evolution of Chinese society one that the state disparages and encourages at the same time Her book will be compelling for all readers who want to understand the context for the present internal and international migrations that have changed the face of China itself and its international relations
