The Making of Meaning Ann E. Berthoff, 1981 Invention in Rhetoric and Composition Janice M. Lauer, 2004

Invention in Rhetoric and Composition examines issues that have surrounded historical and contemporary theories and pedagogies of rhetorical invention citing a wide array of positions on these issues in both primary rhetorical texts and secondary interpretations. It presents theoretical disagreements over the nature purpose and epistemology of invention and pedagogical debates over such issues as the relative importance of art talent imitation and practice in teaching discourse. After a discussion of treatments of invention from the Sophists to the nineteenth century Invention in Rhetoric and Composition introduces a range of early twentieth century multidisciplinary theories and calls for invention's awakening in the field of English studies. It then showcases inventional theories and pedagogies that have emerged in the field of Rhetoric and Composition over the last four decades including the ensuing research critiques and implementations of this inventional work. As a reference guide the text offers a glossary of terms an annotated bibliography of selected texts and an extensive bibliography. Janice M. Lauer is Professor of English Emerita at Purdue University where she was the Reece McGee Distinguished Professor of English. In 1998 she received the College Composition and Communication Conference's Exemplar Award. Teaching Writing Cynthia L. Caywood, Gillian R. Overing, 1987-01-01 This anthology explores the relationship between feminism and writing theory. The chapters cover the major issues basic pedagogical theory and philosophical approaches to the teaching of writing studies of problems encountered by female writers and writing instructors and useful how to essays on classroom technique. The authors also address important provocative questions about power in the classroom its use abuse and distribution. The book is based on the concept of equity which the editors define. Equity does not mean to us the abolition of differences among individuals nor does it imply a blanket imposition of an Orwellian homogeneity. It does not mean stifling some voices so that others may be heard. It does not demand the compromising of academic standards in the name of egalitarianism. Equity as we understand it creates new standards which accommodate and nurture differences. Equity fosters the individual voice in the classroom investing students with confidence in their own authority. Equity unleashes the creative potential of heterogeneity. This definition of equity is at the heart of this anthology and our attempts as teachers to model our pedagogy on this principle provided the impetus for assembling it from the Introduction. André du Bouchet Emma Wagstaff, 2020-08-03 In André du Bouchet Poetic Forms of Attention Emma Wagstaff provides the first book length study in English of this major poet of the second half of the twentieth century. Crises often leave people in vulnerable situations in which a moment in time can function as a turning point of a catastrophic situation for the better or worse. From another perspective, the concept of crisis signifies losing control of everyday privileges such as that of a pandemic. Therefore, the interaction of rhetoric and sociolinguistics in times of crisis is inevitable. It is crucial to internalize how rhetoric, an effective skill from ancient times, can make meaning of sociological breakthrough events, changed the course of events as well as the fate of humanity. Within the same context, research should focus on diverse disciplines to explore, investigate, and analyze the concept of crisis from global sociolinguistic and rhetorical perspectives. Rhetoric and Sociolinguistics in Times of Global Crisis explores and situates the concept of global crisis within rhetoric and sociolinguistics as well as other disciplines such as education, technology, society, language, and politics. The chapters included bridge the gap to initiate a discussion on understanding how rhetoric and sociolinguistics can create critical awareness for individuals, societies, and learning environments during times of crisis. While highlighting concepts such as rhetorical evolution, political rhetoric, digital writing, and communications, this book is a valuable reference tool for language teachers, writing experts, communications specialists, politicians, and government officials, academicians, researchers, and students working and studying in fields that include rhetoric, education, linguistics, culture, media, political science, and communications.

Dialectical Rhetoric Bruce McComiskey, 2015-07-01. In Dialectical Rhetoric, Bruce McComiskey argues that the historical conflict between rhetoric and dialectic can be overcome in ways useful to both composition theory and the composition classroom. Historically, dialectic has taken two forms in relation to rhetoric. First, it has been the logical development of linear propositions leading to necessary conclusions, a one-dimensional form that was the counterpart of rhetorics in which philosophical, metaphysical, and scientific truths were conveyed with as little cognitive interference from language as possible. Second, dialectic has been the topical development of opposed arguments on controversial issues and the judgment of their relative strengths and weaknesses, usually in political and legal contexts, a two-dimensional form that was the counterpart of rhetorics in which verbal battles over competing probabilities in public institutions revealed distinct winners and losers. The discipline of writing studies is on the brink of developing a new relationship between dialectic and rhetoric, one in which dialectics and rhetorics mediate and negotiate different arguments and orientations that are engaged in any rhetorical situation. This new relationship consists of a three-dimensional hybrid art called dialectical rhetoric, whose method is based on five topoi: deconstruction, dialogue, identification, critique, and juxtaposition Three dimensional dialectical rhetorics function effectively in a wide variety of discursive contexts including digital environments since they can invoke contrasts in stagnant contexts and promote associations in chaotic contexts Dialectical Rhetoric focuses more attention on three dimensional rhetorics from the rhetoric and composition community

Securing a Place for Reading in Composition Ellen C. Carillo, 2015-01-15 Securing a Place for Reading in Composition addresses the dissonance between the need to prepare students to read not just write complex texts and the lack of recent scholarship on reading writing connections Author Ellen C Carillo argues that including attention to reading practices is crucial for developing more comprehensive literacy pedagogies Students who can read actively and reflectively will be able to work successfully with the range of complex texts they will encounter throughout their post secondary academic careers and beyond Considering the role of reading within composition from both historical and contemporary perspectives Carillo makes recommendations for the productive integration of reading instruction into first year writing courses She details a mindful reading framework wherein instructors help students cultivate a repertoire of approaches upon which they consistently reflect as they apply them to various texts This metacognitive frame allows students to become knowledgeable and deliberate about how they read and gives them the opportunity to develop the skills useful for moving among reading approaches in mindful ways thus preparing them to actively and productively read in courses and contexts outside first year composition Securing a Place for Reading in Composition also explores how the field of composition might begin to effectively address reading including conducting research on reading revising outcome statements and revisiting the core courses in graduate programs It will be of great interest to writing program administrators and other compositionists and their graduate students

Bringing the Outside in Sara B. Kajder, 2006 The reading that we value in school is becoming further and further distanced from the literacy students experience in their outside lives Inside the classroom we ask our students to immerse themselves in print texts and write purposefully Once out the door they are text messaging blogging engaging in online multi player games and expertly integrating words images and music to create original texts Can we import these textual spaces and literacies into English class to help re connect students who don t see themselves as readers and writers English educator Sara Kajder's answer is an emphatic yes and in Bringing the Outside In she demonstrates myriad ways to employ students' outside talents in the classroom Drawing on multiple examples of student work she shows how she adapts the curriculum to incorporate an expanded definition of literacy and literacy tools Sara offers teachers guidance on how to extend their repertoire of teaching strategies and help kids connect their natural curiosity and skills as readers and writers of both print and electronic texts while keeping reading and writing at the center of the curriculum Keying in on the visual aspects of literacy and building upon students' growing interest in using words and images from their lives to read and write for authentic reasons and authentic audiences integrating such strategies as digital storytelling visual think alouds visual literature circles and others into English class Sara and her kids redefine what it means to be literate in today's world By adding visual components to class activities and projects integrating tools ranging from pencils and paper to weblogs and wikis even reluctant students can become engaged and see themselves as readers and writers for the first time

Breaking the Boundaries

B. Sanyal, 2013-03-09 Exploring the complex arena of international planning for development has until now been uniquely the privilege of influential senior western planners This book calls into question many of their hallowed principles and much of the conventional wisdom still evident in the halls of academe At a time of increasing enrollment of foreign students in North American planning programs the emergence of a new voice has coincided with a growing skepticism worldwide about old notions of planning and development in poorer and ex colonial countries Now there is a need for brave innovations to reshape our understanding of the global crisis and the potential for progressive and democratic local solutions in both rich and poor nations alike This new voice is given expression by academics and professionals from Third World nations who received their planning education in the west and who now hold posts in major western planning schools Breaking the Boundaries presents their views and those of concerned colleagues about the need for a radically changed curriculum based on a comparative one world approach to planning education Their personal experiences as young expatriate scholars and later as teachers of both Third World and First World students in western planning schools are seen as crucial to this need for change Through candid reflections and perceptive critiques of their own field the spatial environmental social design and communications disciplines the contributors explore crucial issues in development planning from theoretical and professional practice perspectives
