Architecture in an Age of Uncertainty Benjamin Flowers, 2016-04-15 In the past two decades economic bubbles inflated and architectural spending around the globe reached fever pitch In both well established centers of capital accumulation and far flung locales audacious building projects sprang up while the skyscraper heretofore more commonly associated with American capitalism seemed as if it might pack up and relocate to Dubai and Shanghai Of course much has changed in the past couple of years In formerly free spending Dubai the tallest building in the world is now named after the president of Abu Dhabi after he stepped in with last minute debt financing In cities across the United States housing prices have nose dived and cleared lots sit ready for commercial redevelopment that likely won't take place for another decade Similar stories are not hard to find in many other nations Architecture firms that swelled in flush days are jettisoning employees at a startling rate In the context of economic instability and its attendant social and political consequences this edited volume brings together scholars critics and architects to discuss the present state of uncertainty in the practice and discipline of architecture The chapters are organized into three main areas of inquiry economics practice and technology Within this larger framework authors explore issues of security ecological design disaster architecture the future of architectural practice and the ethical obligations of the social practice of design In doing so it argues that this period has actually afforded architecture a valuable moment of self reflection where alternative directions for both the theory and practice of architecture might be explored rather than continuing with an approach which was so nurtured by capitalist prosperity and affluence
