New Directions For Product Testing And Sensory Analysis Of Foods:

New Directions for Product Testing and Sensory Analysis of Foods Howard R. Moskowitz, 1985 Guidelines for Sensory Analysis in Food Product Development and Quality Control Roland P. Carpenter, David H. Lyon, Terry A. Hasdell, 2012-12-06 Sensory testing has been in existence ever since man started to use his senses to judge the quality and safety of drinking water and foodstuffs. With the onset of trading there were several developments that led to more formalized testing involving professional tasters and grading systems. Many of these grading systems are still in existence today and continue to serve a useful purpose for example in assessing tea, coffee and wines. However there has also been a growing need for methods for well replicated objective unbiased sensory assessment which can be applied routinely across a wide range of foods. Sensory analysis seeks to satisfy this need. Sensory analysis is not new to the food industry but its application as a basic tool in food product development and quality control has not always been given the recognition and acceptance it deserves. This we believe is largely due to the lack of understanding about what sensory analysis can offer in product research, development and marketing and a fear that the discipline is too scientific to be practical. To some extent sensory scientists have perpetuated this fear by failing to recognize the industrial constraints to implementing sensory testing procedures. These Guidelines are an attempt to redress the balance. Guidelines for Sensory Analysis in Food Product Development and Quality Control David H. Lyon, Mariko A. Francombe, Terry A. Hasdell, 2012-12-06 Sensory analysis is not new to the food industry but its application as a basic tool in food product development and quality control has not been given the recognition and acceptance it deserves. This we believe is largely due to the lack of understanding about what sensory analysis can offer in product research, development and marketing and a fear that the discipline is too scientific to be practical. To some extent sensory scientists have perpetuated this fear with a failure to recognize the constraints of industry in implementing sensory testing procedures. These guidelines are an attempt to redress the balance. Of course product tasting is carried out in every food company it may be the morning tasting session by the managing director, competitor comparisons by the marketers, tasting by a product expert giving a quality opinion, comparison of new recipes from the product development kitchen or on line checking during production. Most relevant though is that the people responsible for the tasting session should know why the work is being done and fully realize that if it is not done well then the results and conclusions drawn and their implications are likely to be misleading. If through the production of these guidelines we have influenced some people sufficiently for them to re-evaluate what they are doing and why we believe our efforts have been worthwhile. Consumer-based New Product Development for the Food Industry Sebastiano Porretta, Howard Moskowitz, Attila Gere, 2021-04-06 In food product development as in all new product development time is money. This is the first book that describes and explains food development from the point of view of the consumer rather than from the top down approach. Innovative development starts with the consumers and makes use of new disrupting technologies to describe the process Combining research from experienced and international top quality contributors it defines the more nuanced development solutions that are becoming available Coverage includes the use of artificial intelligence big data and other new technologies that add to the new product development NPD process and help to create successful products with shorter lead times It includes case studies from around the world that consider aspects of consumer behaviour as well as consumer responses to market research Aimed at all those involved in new product development e g marketing personnel food engineers and manufacturers as well as food scientists this book will provide a fascinating insight into this exciting area of research

Consumer-Led Food Product Development Hal MacFie, 2007-06-30 Consumer acceptance is the key to successful food products It is vital therefore that product development strategies are consumer led for food products to be well received Consumer led food product development presents an up to date review of the latest scientific research and methods in this important area Part one gives the reader a general introduction to factors affecting consumer food choice Chapters explore issues such as sensory perception culture ethics attitudes towards innovation and psychobiological mechanisms Part two analyses methods to understand consumers food related attitudes and how these methods can be effectively used covering techniques such as means end chains and the food related lifestyle approach The final part of the book addresses a wide variety of methods used for consumer led product development Opportunity identification concept development difference testing and preference trials are discussed as well as the use of techniques such as just about right scales and partial least squares methods Written by an array of international experts Consumer led food product development is an essential reference for product developers in the food industry Introduces the factors affecting consumer food choice Explores issues such as sensory perception culture and ethics Analyses methods to understand food related attitudes

Sensory Evaluation of Food Harry T. Lawless, Hildegard Heymann, 2013-12-11 The field of sensory evaluation has matured in the last half century to become a recognized discipline in the food and consumer sciences and an important part of the foods and consumer products industries Sensory professionals enjoy widespread recognition for the important services they provide in new product development basic research ingredient and process modification cost reduction quality maintenance and product optimization These services enhance the informational support for management decisions lowering the risk that accompanies the decision making process From the consumers perspective a sensory testing program in a food or consumer products company helps ensure that products reach the market with not only good concepts but also with desirable sensory attributes that meet their expectations Sensory professionals have advanced well beyond the stage when they were simply called on to execute taste tests and to provide statistical summaries of results They are now frequently asked to participate in the decision process itself to draw reasoned conclusions based on data and to make recommendations They are also expected to be well versed in an increasingly sophisticated battery of test methods and statistical procedures including multivariate analyses As always sensory professionals also need to understand people for people are the measuring instruments that provide the basic sensory data People are notoriously variable and difficult to calibrate presenting the sensory specialist with many additional measurement problems that are not present in instrumental methods

Descriptive Sensory Analysis in Practice Maximo C. Gacula, Jr., 2008-06-02 In defining sensory properties of products descriptive techniques that utilize trained panels are used Arthur D Little Inc pioneered a descriptive technique in the 1950s known as the Flavor Profile that laid the foundation for the development of current descriptive techniques used today in academia and industry Several collections of published papers are reprinted in this book The main areas covered include dairy products meats alcoholic beverages textile materials and general applications In addition Dr Gacula has prepared 40 pages of new text material on 1 Descriptive Sensory Analysis Methods and 2 Computer Software Methods for statistical systems SAS computer programs are provided Food Colour and Appearance Hutchings, 2012-12-06 Much of man's behaviour is controlled by appearance but the appearance of his food is of paramount importance to his health and well-being. In day to day survival and marketing situations we can or not most foods are fit to eat from their optical tell whether properties. Although vision and colour perception are the means by which we appreciate our surroundings visual acceptance depends on more than just colour. It depends on total appearance. In the recent past the food technologist has been under pressure to increase his/her understanding of first the behaviour of raw materials under processing and second the behaviour and motivation of his/her customers in a growing more discriminating and worldwide market. The chapters which follow describe the philosophy of total appearance, the factors comprising it and its application to the food industry. Included are considerations of the evolutionary, historical and cultural aspects of food appearance, the physics and food chemistry of colour and appearance, the principles of sensory appearance assessment and appearance profile analysis as well as instrumental measurement, the interaction of product appearance control and acceptance in the varied environments of the laboratory, production line, supermarket, home and restaurant. A broad examination has been made in an attempt to get into perspective the importance of appearance to all sectors of the industry.

Sensory and Consumer Research in Food Product Design and Development Howard R. Moskowitz, Jacqueline H. Beckley, Anna V. A. Resurreccion, 2012-01-24 During the past thirty years companies have recognized the consumer as the key driver for business and product success. This recognition has in turn generated its own drivers: sensory analysis and marketing research leading first to a culture promoting the expert and then evolving into the systematic acquisition of consumer relevant information to build businesses. Sensory and Consumer Research in Food Product Design and Development is the first book to present from the business viewpoint the critical issues faced by business leaders from both the research development and business development perspective. This popular volume now in an updated and expanded second edition presents a unique perspective afforded by the author team of Moskowitz, Beckley and Resurreccion, three leading practitioners in the field who each possess both academic and business acumen. Newcomers to the field will be introduced to systematic experimentation at the very early stages to newly emerging methods for data acquisition, knowledge development and to points of view employed by successful food and beverage companies. The advanced reader will find new ideas backed up by illustrative case histories to provide another perspective on commonly encountered problems and their practical solutions. This book is aimed at professionals in all sectors of the food and beverage industry. Sensory and Consumer Research in Food Product Design and Development is especially important for those business and research professionals involved in the early stages of product development where business opportunity is often the greatest Handbook of Food Science, Technology, and Engineering - 4 Volume Set Y. H. Hui, Frank

Sherkat, 2005-12-19 Advances in food science technology and engineering are occurring at such a rapid rate that obtaining current detailed information is challenging at best While almost everyone engaged in these disciplines has accumulated a vast variety of data over time an organized comprehensive resource containing this data would be invaluable to have The Multisensory Development Andrew J. Bremner, David J. Lewkowicz, Charles Spence, 2012-06-21 We perceive and understand our environment using many sensory systems vision touch hearing taste smell and proprioception These multiple sensory modalities not only give us complementary sources of information about the environment but also an understanding that is richer and more complex than one modality alone could achieve As adults we integrate the multiple signals from these sense organs into unified functional representations However the ease with which we accomplish this feat belies its computational complexity Not only do the senses convey information about the environment in different neural codes but the relationship between the senses frequently changes when for example the body changes posture e g when the eyes move in their sockets or indeed shape when the body grows across development These computational problems prompt an important question which represents the key focus of this book How do we develop the ability to integrate the senses While there is a considerable literature on the development of single senses such as vision or hearing few books have considered the development of all our senses and more importantly how they develop the ability to work with each other This book is unique in exploring this extraordinary feat of human nature how we develop the ability to integrate our senses It will be an important book for all those in the fields of cognitive and developmental neuroscience Packaging Research in Food
