Willa Cather Marilee Lindemann, 1999-02-10 Although it has been proven posthumously by scholars that Willa Cather had lesbian relationships she did not openly celebrate lesbian desire and even today is sometimes described as homophobic and misogynistic What then can a reassessment of this contentious first lady of American letters add to an understanding of the gay identities that have emerged in America over the past century As Marilee Lindemann shows in this study of the novelist's life and work Cather's sexual coming of age occurred at a time when a cultural transition was recasting love between women as sexual deviance rather than romantic friendship At the same time the very identity of America was characterized by great instability as the United States emerged as a modern industrial nation and imperial power Indeed both terms queer and America achieved fresh ideological potency at the turn of the century Willa Cather Queering America is an enlightening unpacking of Cather's writings from her controversial love letters of the 1890s in which queer is employed to denote sexual deviance to her epic novels short stories and critical writings Lindemann points to the queer qualities of Cather's fiction rebellion against traditional fictional form with sometimes unlikable characters lack of emphasis on heroic action and lack of engagement in the drama of heterosexual desire

Between the Angle and the Curve Danielle Russell, 2006 In this study Russell explores the ways in which Willa Cather and Toni Morrison subvert the textual expectations of gendered geography and push against the boundaries of the official canon As Russell demonstrates the unique depictions Cather and Morrison create of the American landscape challenge existing assertions about American fiction Specifically Russell argues that looking at the intimate connections between space gender race and identity as they play out in the fiction of Cather and Morrison refutes the myth of a unified American landscape and thus opens up the territory of American fiction
