

- What roles do interest groups play in our political system?
 - Interest groups try to influence the making and content of public policy. They do this by:
 - Promoting awareness of public affairs
 - Representing people who share their views, regardless of where those people live
 - Providing useful information to government on specific policy issues
 - Helping people take part in the political process

Michael T. Hayes,2023-10-16 This book examines incrementalism as a policymaking process in the USA It provides an overview of incrementalism as a theoretical concept assesses historical and contemporary attitudes toward it and considers it as a viable alternative to rationality The book argues that incrementalism is both an inevitable and desirable method of policymaking despite seeming ill suited to the current system of highly ideological and polarized political parties It also advocates a return to realism in which policymakers on both the left and right recognize the superiority of incrementalism as well as a new system of partisan incrementalism through which political parties compete by offering distinctive incremental alternatives on major policy issues The book will appeal to scholars and students of American public policy public administration and politics What Government Can Do Benjamin I.
