Making Forest Policy Work:

Making Forest Policy Work A.I. Fraser, 2013-04-17 Policy issues relating to forestry have been the subject of much debate in recent years and many countries and international agencies have recently or are currently in the process of revising their policies for forestry Much of this debate has implied that previous policies have failed or been much less successful than had been hoped There is a tendency to think of policy as a matter for governments but it is now more widely appreciated that all shareholders in the forestry sector have a legitimate interest in both the policy objectives and the means that will be used to implement it This book is mainly concerned with the process of developing policy and the subsequent implementation than in specific content though many of the important issues which policies must address are discussed It is based on a review of many case studies with which the author has been personally involved over the past 40 years

Making forest concessions in the tropics work to achieve the 2030 Agenda Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2018-07-30 The specific objective of these Voluntary Guidelines is to promote the sustainable management of public production natural forests in tropical countries through forest concessions thereby fulfilling their potential contribution to the achievement of Agenda 2030 Forest concession regimes are treated here as forest policy instruments and should be aligned with the sustainable forest management objectives agreed by countries in the UNFF The current Guidelines intend to serve as guidance for making forest concessions an effective economic instrument of forest policy in the context of the 2030 Agenda transforming them into an instrument capable of delivering sustainable forest management in all its dimensions and generating socio economic benefits to relevant stakeholders Protocol for Somatic Embryogenesis in Woody Plants Shri Mohan Jain, Pramod K. Gupta, 2005-05-23 World population is increasing at an alarming rate and this has resulted in increasing tremendously the demand for tree products such as wood for construction materials fuel and paper fruits oils and medicines etc This has put immense pressure on the world's supplies of trees and raw material to industry and will continue to do so as long as human population continues to grow Also the quality of human diet especially nutritional components is adversely affected due to limited genetic improvement of most of fruit trees Thus there is an immediate need to increase productivity of trees Improvement has been made through conventional breeding methods however conventional breeding is very slow due to long life cycle of trees A basic strategy in tree improvement is to capture genetic gain through clonal propagation Clonal propagation via organogenesis is being used for the production of selected elite individual trees However the methods are labour intensive costly and produce low volumes Genetic gain can now be captured through somatic embryogenesis Formation of embryos from somatic cells by a process resembling zygotic embryogenesis is one of the most important features of plants In 1958 Reinert in Germany and Steward in USA independently reported somatic embryogenesis in carrot cultures Since then tremendous progress in somatic embryogenesis of woody and non woody plants has taken place It offers a potentially large scale propagation system for superior clones The 'journey' Towards

Collaborative Forest Management in Africa Olivier Dubois, Janet Lowore, 2000      Pulp and Paper Magazine of Canada, 1919      Cultural Hybridity and the Environment Kirsten Maclean, 2015-02-07 This book highlights the importance of diversity in overcoming issues of social and environmental degradation. It presents conceptual and practical strategies to celebrate local and Indigenous knowledge for improved community development and environmental management. David Harvey has proclaimed: "The geography we make must be a people's geography." This clarion call challenges geographers around the world to consider the power and potential of geographic knowledge as the basis for social action—a call this book answers, providing readers the theoretical and conceptual tools needed to understand the social world and empowering them to mobilize social change. The author uses empirical case studies of two environmental management and community development projects to document how knowledge generation is essentially locally situated and socially derived. In doing so, she charts a path for moving beyond what Vandana Shiva so aptly describes as monocultures of the mind. The book argues that local and Indigenous knowledge must not be seen in opposition to scientific knowledge, as none of these knowledge traditions hold all the answers to localized socio-environmental problems. Rather, as the author explores through a set of processes and strategies to enable support and celebrate cultural hybridity at the local environmental governance scale, these respective knowledge systems can learn to speak to each other. Such dialogue has the potential to support more sustainable outcomes at multiple environmental governance locales. This book will be of interest to everyone involved in environmental policy planning or politics and for those who want to make this planet a more sustainable and just place.      Weekly

Compilation of Presidential Documents, 2002      Forestry Flavours of the Month Alastair Fraser, 2016-05-20 Forestry touches on all aspects of human welfare in one way or another, which is why foresters need to play an active role in determining our collective agenda. Alastair Fraser, a lifelong forester and the co-founder of LTS International, a forestry consulting company, explains how forestry changes with political cycles and how foresters can promote healthy forests at all times. He explores critical issues such as forests and their connection to coal, forests' role in combatting floods and climate change, illegal logging in Indonesia, Laos, and elsewhere, tactics to promote sustainable forestry management, plantations as a solution to tropical deforestation, from pulping in Sweden and Brazil, paper mills in Greece and India, agroforestry in the Philippines, pink disease in India, and oil-bearing trees of Vietnam. No topic is off-limits. Based on the author's life as a forester in dozens of countries, this account shows the breadth of forestry and makes a convincing case that forestry management needs to focus on managing change and achieving sustainability. Whether you're preparing to become a forester already in the field or involved with conservation, the environment, or government, you'll be driven to action with Forestry Flavours of the Month.      The American Review of Reviews Albert Shaw, 1910      Public Papers of the Presidents of the United States United States. President, 2005. Containing the public messages, speeches, and statements of the President, 1956-1992.      George W. Bush: bk. 2, July 1 to December 31, 2002 United States. Monthly Review of Reviews Albert Shaw,1910      Achieving the Sustainable Management of Forests Alastair Fraser,2019-04-26 This book discusses the reality of implementing sustainable forest management measures Rather than simply offering theoretical descriptions the book comprehensively details how sustainably managed forests can only be achieved through the cooperation and support of foresters politicians business leaders local communities consumers of forest based goods and services and the general public The book also aims to raise public awareness of the factors involved in attaining the true sustainability of forest management and the consequences of failing to do so as well as the current issues facing sustainable forest management such as land ownership and land use rights political corruption environmental stressors and economic pressure In 17 chapters the book will appeal to academics and teachers in forestry and related areas government practitioners development agencies and NGOs

Incentives for Sustainable Forest Management: A Study In Ghana James Mayers,1996      Forest and Nature Governance Bas Arts,Jelle Behagel,Séverine van Bommel,Jessica de Koning,Esther Turnhout,2012-09-22 Today problems such as deforestation biodiversity loss and illegal logging have provoked various policy responses that are often referred to as forest and nature governance In its broadest interpretation governance is about the many ways in which public and private actors from the state market and or civil society govern public issues at multiple scales This book takes a fresh perspective on the study of forest and nature governance Departing from practice theory and building upon scholars like Giddens Bourdieu Reckwitz Schatzki and Callon it seeks to move beyond established understandings of institutions actors and knowledge In so doing it not only presents an innovative conceptual and methodological framework for a practice based
