Memory Philipp Wolf,2002 Contemporary studies of memory focus either on the psychology of remembering on its archives and media or on the traditional ars memoriae The general cultural framework with its social and material factors is largely neglected despite the obvious impact on both collective and individual mnemonic mentality But as in the first half of the seventeenth century or the later twentieth century the literary and political invocation of religious collective or national memory occurs most of all in times of historical rupture and attendant changes of a radical technological and cultural nature Appeals to the power of memory are not only indicative of the anxiety about the loss of its binding or absolving character They are already symptomatic of a deep crisis of cultural memory in itself resulting from an erosion of firm spatial temporal and historical references along with an increasing tendency towards reflexivity which calls the apparently self evident facts of past and present into question The continuity of remembering however as this study argues presupposes the permanence and recurrence of social and material relations of representative or symbolic persons objects and events in which it can inscribe itself But owing to the shift in historical consciousness from typological past to progressive future and novelty and under the impress of industrial production and modern media mobility and communications the Western subject has to cope constantly with new empirical situations symbolic values and historical or current information whose origin and evolution indeed the very memory of them remain alien to personal identity and memory The promise of redemption and salvation still inherent in seventeenth century collective memory loses credibility The study includes a wide range of authors from Donne to Pope Tennyson to George Eliot and Walter Pater W B Yeats to Don DeLillo and covers the whole period from early modern England to postmodernism It can thus also be read as a brief history of Western memory and its continuing crises

Memory Maps Mariko Asano Tamanoi, 2008-10-31 Between 1932 and 1945 more than 320 000 Japanese emigrated to Manchuria in northeast China with the dream of becoming land owning farmers Following the Soviet invasion of Manchuria and Japan's surrender in August 1945 their dream turned into a nightmare Since the late 1980s popular Japanese conceptions have overlooked the disastrous impact of colonization and resurrected the utopian justification for creating Manchukuo as the puppet state was known This re remembering Mariko Tamanoi argues constitutes a source of friction between China and Japan today Memory Maps tells the compelling story of both the promise of a utopia and the tragic aftermath of its failure An anthropologist Tamanoi approaches her investigation of Manchuria's colonization and collapse as a complex history of the present which in postcolonial studies refers to the examination of popular memory of past colonial relations of power To mitigate this complexity she has created four memory maps that draw on the recollections of former Japanese settlers their children who were left in China and later repatriated and Chinese who lived under Japanese rule in Manchuria The first map presents the oral histories of farmers who emigrated from Nagano Japan to Manchuria between 1932 and 1945 and returned home after the war Interviewees were asked to remember the colonization of Manchuria during Japan's age of empire Hikiage mono autobiographies make up the second map These are written memories of repatriation from the Soviet invasion to some time between 1946 and 1949 The third memory map is entitled Orphans Voices It examines the oral and written memories of the children of Japanese settlers who were left behind at the war's end but returned to Japan after relations between China and Japan were normalized in 1972 The memories of Chinese who lived the age of empire in Manchuria make up the fourth map This map also includes the memories of Chinese couples who adopted the abandoned children of Japanese settlers as well as the children themselves who renounced their Japanese nationality and chose to remain in China In the final chapter Tamanoi considers theoretical questions of the state and the relationship between place voice and nostalgia She also attempts to integrate the four memory maps in the transnational space covering Japan and China Both fastidious in dealing with theoretical questions and engagingly written Memory Maps contributes not only to the empirical study of the Japanese empire and its effects on the daily lives of Japanese and Chinese but also to postcolonial theory as it applies to the use of memory TIME the Science of Memory The Editors of TIME, 2018-12-21
