

Patterns in Isolation: Three Versions of Canadian Literature and Society

ZAILIG POLLOCK

Paul Cappon (ed.), In Our Own House: Social Perspectives on Canadian Literature. Toronto: McClelland and Stewart, 1978. 208 pp. $5.95.

John Moss, Sex and Violence in the Canadian Novel: The Ancestral Present. Toronto: McClelland and Stewart, 1977. 326 pp. $6.95.

Ronald Sutherland, The New Hero: Essays in Comparative Quebec/Canadian Literature. Toronto: MacMillan of Canada, 1977. 118 pp. $6.95.

The three books under review are all responses to the new Canadian literature of the last fifteen years or so. Moss focusses on the English Canadian novel, and Sutherland on a wide range of literature in English Canada and Quebec, and, although Cappon and his fellow contributors deal with English Canadian literature from its beginnings to the present day, their main concern, too, is what has been happening in recent years. Understandably, there is considerable overlap in the works discussed, and the expected names — Atwood, Laurence, Davies, Richler, Ross, and so forth — crop up again and again. But the conclusions which the three books arrive at are so totally at odds, that one almost wonders if it is a single literature which is under discussion. To paraphrase the title of Moss's earlier study, the three books seem to be formulating patterns in isolation from each other. In the case of Moss and Sutherland, this isolation is part of a larger isolation, from the scholarly community as a whole, both Canadian and international. The isolation of In Our Own House has a different cause; Cappon and his fellow contributors deliberately turn their backs on the dominant liberal approach to Canadian literature and society which they see as essentially barren. Sex and Violence in the Canadian Novel and

The New Hero are clearly representative of the tradition they oppose. One may have doubts about the alternative tradition Cappon proposes, but one need not accept his point of view to feel that books like Moss's and Sutherland's have little contribution to make to a genuinely fruitful tradition of Canadian literary criticism in the sense of a shared, cumulative enterprise.

Moss and Sutherland present different ideas about what is specifically Canadian in Canadian literature and in the society of which it is an expression. They observe certain facts about recent Canadian literature and formulate theories to explain them. But in both cases we feel that, although the original observations may be correct, and the theories not necessarily implausible, too much is left out: Moss and Sutherland do not take a broad enough view of the territory. Before turning to their specific arguments, I would like to point to what would seem to be areas of immediate relevance to any account of the Canadianness of Canadian literature, which Moss and Sutherland, formulating their patterns in isolation, have seriously neglected.

Most obviously, Moss and Sutherland, though literary critics themselves, virtually ignore the substantial body of Canadian literary criticism which has grown up over the last few years. They do not in their colleagues' direction: they both list the standard critical texts in their bibliographies; Moss surveys Canadian criticism in a page and a half at the end of his book; and Sutherland begins his book with a reference to the proliferation of studies in his particular area of interest, comparative Canadian literature. In fact, however, Moss and Sutherland never really take into account the critical discussions which have been generated by many of the works they discuss. This is especially disturbing in Moss's case since, as he informs us, he was a founding editor of the Journal of Canadian Fiction. In his role of editor he presumably considers Canadian literary criticism worth encouraging. Why, then, in his role of critic, does he feel free to ignore it? Sutherland is somewhat better in this respect, in that he at least does cite his colleagues occasionally. But he has much more to say about his own previous

Ming Chen, Yuhua Ji, 2015-06-09 This monograph is the first academic work to apply a neo Marxist approach to 20th century Canadian social realist novels pursuing a refreshingly neo Marxist approach to such issues as Bakhtinian notions of the novelistic form and dialogism as applied to Canadian socio political novels influenced by various socialisms socialist feminist concerns economic and sexual politics and the genre of social realism In so doing it demonstrates that Marxist socialism is as relevant today as it was in the 1930s just as social realist novels continue to thrive as a critique of capitalism Readers will find valuable insights into the social significance formal innovations moral sensitivity aesthetic enrichment and ideological complexity of Canadian social realist novels

New Contexts of Canadian Criticism Ajay Heble, Donna Palmateer Pennee, J.R. Struthers, 1997-04-18 Times change lives change and the terms we need to describe our literature or society or condition what Raymond Williams calls keywords change with them Perhaps the most significant development in the quarter century since Eli Mandel edited his anthology Contexts of Canadian Criticism has been the growing recognition that not only do different people need different terms but the same terms have different meanings for different people and in different contexts Nation history culture art identity the positions we take discussing these and other issues can lead to conflict but also hold the promise of a new sort of community Speaking of First Nations people and their literature Beth Brant observes that Our connections are like the threads of a weaving While the colour and beauty of each thread is unique and important together they make a communal material of strength and durability New Contexts of Canadian Criticism is designed to be read to work in much the same manner
