Health Information in a Changing World W. Bernard Luckenbill,Barbara Froling Immroth,2010-06-14 This holistic guide explains how school librarians and teachers can successfully integrate relevant health concepts and life skills throughout the curriculum for students K through 12 In the United States convenience food and soft drink based diets increasingly sedentary lifestyles and obesity have become common in youth culture The importance of health education merits integration throughout school curricula unfortunately research shows that many teachers do not feel prepared to teach health issues within their subject areas This book will encourage all librarians and teachers no matter their specific area of instruction to include health lessons in their teaching Health Information in a Changing World Practical Approaches for Teachers Schools and School Librarians provides a complete action plan for librarians and teachers who want to provide better health information to students and their caregivers It contains an extensive discussion of teaching health within curriculum areas such as literature history and biography art science and mathematics industrial technology and agriculture Tips on accessing and evaluating health information in print and electronic media are presented as well as practical suggestions for effective instructional methods including ideas on conducting demonstrations field trips speaker programs and online distance education New findings regarding teaching effectiveness assessment are also presented The Study of Society W. Lance Bennett,1973 Society Ian Robertson,1989 This concise elegantly written paperback volume on the essential elements of sociology is perfect as the sole textbook for a brief introductory course or as a core text to be supplemented with other readings Structure and Agency in Young People's Lives Magda Nico,Ana Caetano,2021-05-12 Structure and Agency in Young People's Lives brings together different takes on the possible combinations of agency and structure in the life course thus rejecting the notion that young individuals are the single masters of their lives but also the view that their social destinies are completely out of their hands How did I get here This is a question young people have always asked themselves and is often asked by youth researchers There is no easy and single answer The lives that are told on one hand and their interpretation on the other may have the underlying idea of own doing or the idea of social determinism or more accurately and frequently a combination of the two This collection constitutes a comprehensive map on how to make sense of youth's biographies and trajectories it questions and reshapes the discussion on the role and responsibility of youth studies in the understanding of how people juggle opportunities and constraints and contributes to escaping what Furlong and Cartmel identified as the epistemological fallacy of late modernity in which young people find themselves responsible for collective failures or inevitabilities It can thus interest students researchers and professors youth workers and all of those who work for and with young people Aging, Society, and the Life Course Leslie A. AIDS pandemic Understanding the Global Environment Samir Dasgupta, 2009 Globalization is often discussed in terms of its ecological ramifications. Yet while ecological imbalance is today one of the greatest threats to mankind, globalization is also a reality that is here to stay. The volume therefore seeks to address how globalizing and environmental interests can be reconciled. The essays in this volume state that globalization can work both in favour of and against the environment. The major issues discussed in this topical volume are how globalization can be used to promote environmental reforms, the role of individuals, private organizations and governments in keeping environmental degradation in check and in promoting environmental reform, globalization and ecological inequality, women, the environment and globalization, changing nature of environmental movements, overpopulation and the ecology, the relation between the ecology and the economy and the effects of global climate changes.
