Advanced manufacturing systems from their conception to implementation require intense human involvement. In the attempt to eliminate human labour other skills become vital in the successful design and operation of high technology systems. In order to succeed technical knowledge must be integrated with human capabilities within a social infrastructure from top level management to end users. Such integration can be best organized into a socio technical theoretical framework. The papers in this volume reflect the complexity of current and potential problems which are intrinsic to technological advances in computerized manufacturing systems.

International Encyclopedia of Ergonomics and Human Factors, Second Edition - 3 Volume Set Waldemar Karwowski, 2006-03-15. The previous edition of the International Encyclopedia of Ergonomics and Human Factors made history as the first unified source of reliable information drawn from many realms of science and technology and created specifically with ergonomics professionals in mind. Demonstrating the truly interdisciplinary nature of this field these changes make the second edition even more comprehensive more informative more in a word encyclopedic. Keeping the format popularized by the first edition the new edition has been completely revised and updated. Divided into 13 sections and organized alphabetically within each section the entries provide a clear and simple outline of the topics as well as precise and practical information. The book reviews applications tools and innovative concepts related to ergonomic research. Technical terms are defined where possible within entries as well as in a glossary. Students and professionals will find this format invaluable whether they have ergonomics engineering computing or psychology backgrounds. Experts and researchers will also find it an excellent source of information on areas beyond the range of their direct interests.
