Patterns Of Soviet Thought The Origins Development Of Dialectical Historical Materialism:

Patterns of Soviet Thought Richard T. De George, 1966 Marxism Leninism as a way of thinking is foreign to most Westerners but it permeates the thought of nearly a third of educated mankind Patterns of Soviet Thought traces the development of the Marxist Leninist philosophy clarifies its meaning in theory and practice and emphasizes its position in the Soviet Union Based on the writings of Marx Engels and Lenin and on contemporary Soviet writings this book reveals the basic patterns that make up the modern Soviet worldview How can both the Chinese and the Soviets quote Lenin to support opposing positions How could an educated Soviet citizen accept the official about face concerning Stalin How can the same citizen condemn the United States morally while admiring many of its citizens and emulating its standard of living To answer questions like these we need to understand the ambiguities and contradictions of Soviet thought They are its philosophical Achilles heel but they also help to shape it and give it resiliency in the face of facts Written for the intelligent general reader Patterns of Soviet Thought summarizes the works of major and minor philosophers from Marx to the present and offers a detailed critique of their important ideas It provides the basis for an understanding of present day Soviet policies and of the developments that are to mold the future course of the Soviet Union Patterns of Soviet Thought; the Origins and Development of Dialectical and Historical Materialism [by] Richard T. DeGeorge Richard T. De George, 1970 Mao Tse-Tung's Theory of Dialectic F.Y.K. Soo, 2012-12-06 The year 1979 ushered in a new phase in China's long and continuous revolution Currently this new phase is being symbolically referred to by the Chinese leaders themselves as the New Long March a continuation of the legendary and historical Long March in terms of modernization which comprises the Four Modernizations Agriculture Industry Science and Technology and Military Defense Such an all encompassing attempt at modernization may appear to some at least to be something new or may indicate a radical shift in her policy But upon closer examination this decision seems only to reflect an historical continuity in terms of the two major long term goals of the Chinese Revolution national independence and modernization or industrialization The former would make China strong the latter wealthy For ever since the Opium War in 1840 and throughout the Revolutions of 1911 and 1949 China has always pursued these two revolutionary goals though with different emphases at different times This has been especially true during the past three decades as this twofold goal has dictated all of China's important policies both domestic and foreign In other words while the concrete policies may have appeared to be lacking in unity at times they have been formulated with the specific intent of achieving national independence and modernization From this perspective the New Long March marks the passage of post Mao China beyond the transition of succession toward the continued pursuit of the same revolutionary goals

Department of the Army, 1969 Soviet Historiography of Philosophy Evert van der Zweerde, 2013-06-29 Scientific history of philosophy was one of the professional branches of Soviet philosophy and a place where philosophical culture was preserved in an often hostile environment Situated between the ideological exigencies of the Soviet system with its Marxist Leninist theoretical foundation and the need for an objective account of philosophy's past Soviet history of philosophy displays the characteristic features of Soviet philosophy as a whole including a forceful reappearance of its Hegelian background This book is the only Western monograph on this important part of Soviet philosophy thus filling the last main gap in Western Philosophical Sovietology At the same time it offers the first survey of Soviet philosophy after the disappearance of the Soviet system itself embarking on an historical and meta philosophical investigation of Soviet philosophical culture The book will be of interest to students of Soviet and Russian philosophy historians of philosophy and specialists in Soviet studies Beyond Marx and Mach K.M. ALEKSANDR BOGDANOV On April 7 1928 the career of one of the most extraordinary figures of Russian and early Soviet intellectual life came to an abrupt and premature end In the process of an experiment on blood transfusion Aleksandr Aleksandrovich Malinovsky better known as Bogdanov had exchanged his blood with that of a critically ill malaria victim in hopes of saving both the patient and his blood The outcome of this may be guessed both doctor and patient died forthwith Although an extraordinary venture on Bogdanov's part for it was part of a search for the means to immortality the transfusion experiment was only one of a host of startling things he had done in his thirty years in Russian politics and public life In actuality the activities and achievement of his two years as director of the Soviet Union's first institute for the study of blood transfusion seem virtually insignificant beside the events of earlier years It would be fair to say that Aleksandr Bogdanov stood in a singularly prominent position in the political and intellectual life of Russia from the turn of the century to 1930 Politically he had been Lenin's only serious rival for leadership among the Bolsheviks before 1917 In the early years of the Soviet regime Bogdanov stood head and shoulders above any other public figure operating outside the ranks of the Party Only a handful of men i e
