The Hermeneutic Spiral and Interpretation in Literature and the Visual Arts Michael O'Toole, 2018-03-26

This collection brings together eighteen of the author's original papers previously published in a variety of academic journals and edited collections over the last three decades on the process of interpretation in literature and the visual arts in one comprehensive volume. The volume highlights the centrality of artistic texts to the study of multimodality, organized into six sections, each representing a different modality or semiotic system, including literature, television, film, painting, sculpture, and architecture. A new introduction lays the foundation for the theoretically based method of analysis running through each of the chapters, one that emphasizes the interplay of textual details and larger thematic purposes to create an open-ended and continuous approach to the interpretation of artistic texts, otherwise known as the hermeneutic spiral. Showcasing Michael O'Toole's extensive contributions to the field of multimodality and in his research on interpretation in literature and the visual arts, this book is essential reading for students and scholars in multimodality, visual arts, art history, film studies, and comparative literature.

Effects and Implications of Pragmatic Competence for Enhancing EFL University Students' Written Performance Barham Sattar Abdulrahman, 2012-12-11

The book Effects and Implications of Pragmatic Competence for Enhancing EFL University Students' Written Performance highlights the effects and implications of the Kurdish EFL students' lack of pragmatic competence on their written performance. It includes the written performance of the students at the recognition level and the production level and relies on the results achieved from its instruments: the students' test, the students' questionnaire, and the lecturers' questionnaire. Depending on the results obtained from the tools, the study tries to identify and find out the sources of errors in the written performance of the Kurdish EFL university students. The book hypothesizes that the inadequacy of the students' written performance could be attributed to the curricula and/or the students' dependence on the grammatical aspects of the foreign language, neglecting the pragmatic and the socio cultural dimensions This gives turn to state that the students written performance is better at the recognition level than the production due to the negative interference of their mother tongue The book concludes that Kurd EFL learners at the university level face serious difficulties when writing in English The inappropriateness of their written performance can be attributed to the negative effects of their first language lack of contact with English native speakers and culture as well as the limited opportunities to have been in English speaking communities Therefore for enhancing EFL university students written performance it is recommended that they should be introduced to the English culture through adding pragmatics and English Culture as two separate subject matters to the curricula and to arrange summer courses for the students in English speaking countries UK and US in particular
