Russian Writers on Translation Brian James Baer, Natalia Olshanskaya, 2014-07-16 Since the early eighteenth century, following Peter the Great's policy of forced westernization, translation in Russia has been a very visible and much discussed practice. Generally perceived as an important service to the state and the nation, translation was also viewed as a high art, leading many Russian poets and writers to engage in literary translation in a serious and sustained manner. As a result, translations were generally regarded as an integral part of an author's oeuvre and of Russian literature as a whole. This volume brings together Russian writings on translation from the mid 18th century until today and presents them in chronological order, providing valuable insights into the theory and practice of translation in Russia. Authored by some of Russia's leading writers, such as Aleksandr Pushkin, Fedor Dostoevskii, Lev Tolstoi, Maksim Gorkii and Anna Akhmatova, many of these texts are translated into English for the first time. They are accompanied by extensive annotation and biographical sketches of the authors and reveal Russian translation discourse to be a sophisticated and often politicized exploration of Russian national identity as well as the nature of the modern subject. Russian Writers on Translation fills a persistent gap in the literature on alternative translation traditions, highlighting the vibrant and intense culture of translation on Europe's periphery. Viewed in a broad cultural context, the selected texts reflect a nuanced understanding of the Russian response to world literature and highlight the attempts of Russian writers to promote Russia as an all inclusive cultural model

The Russian Arctic Straits R. Douglas Brubaker,2005-01-01 The issues surrounding the regimes of ice covered areas international straits and passage rights of State vessels are analysed for the purpose of assessing the status of law and State practice in Russian Arctic waters Passage through the Northern Sea Route has for decades been one of the most contentious legal issues in Soviet Russian U S relations The jurisdictional claims of the large Arctic coastal States indicate substantial deviation from application of established law of the sea The regimes of straits used for international navigation and passage rights of State vessels seem subordinate to the regime of ice covered areas The main finding is that there are certain elements of consistency in the common interpretation of existing law and the behaviour of these States These elements seem to have put into action the process of formation of a specific customary international law as well as implementation and interpretation of the law under the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties
