Michael Clarke, Claude Monet, Richard Thomson

Monet The Seine And The Sea 1878-1883:

Monet Michael Clarke, Claude Monet, Richard Thomson, 2003 Monet was the most remarkable of all the Impressionist landscape painters And perhaps at no point in his career was his work more varied than in the years between 1878 and 1883 During this time he produced some 300 paintings many of them are amongst his finest works His painting encompassed motifs of village and river cliff and wave as well as expressive portraits and rich still lifes For much of this period Monet lived at Vetheuil a village on the river Seine between Paris and the English Channel In this tranquil setting Monet painted in all seasons He tackled orchards in spring expansive fields of corn and the bare trees of the winter months Among his most memorable paintings are those he made of the ice floes on the Seine during the great thaw of 1880 On the Normandy coast he painted views straight out to sea as well as vistas of the beach and the sublime presence of the great cliffs Monet the Seine and the Sea shows Monet the innovator the daring Impressionist challenging his brush to record the shifting moods of nature as well as Monet the competitor taking on the example of previous painters and reshaping their motifs in his vigorously personal painting 150 colour illustrations Monet Tasha Stamford, 2021-02-25 Monet is familiar to millions of people the world over His works are much loved and admired so it is almost inconceivable to imagine that at the time he produced his first works Monet enraged critics and the public alike At times the light Monet achieved in his paintings was almost the subject itself The light enhanced the works and gave Monet's paintings a photographic quality despite the impression of the subject of the piece It was these impressions rather than the subjects or themes that established Monet as a revolutionary artist Monet was the founder of the Impressionist movement and worked across more than six decades to the point of obsession to produce one of the largest volumes of oeuvres the world had ever seen The Impressionists were keen to eliminate the color black from their palettes and encouraged this practice at every opportunity It brought about a new color theory which emphasized the presence of color within shadows and they worked to the rule that there was no black in nature and therefore it should not be included in their paintings Monet is widely regarded as the forerunner of French Impressionism Monet was keen for a move away from realism and the traditional oil painting techniques of the 19th century It was early in his career that Monet created a style that focused on the light in shadows This study of natural light was the focus of his first Impressionist painting Impression Sunrise 1872 which came to represent the new art movement taking shape Louis Leroy a critic who viewed the painting was unsympathetic to the developments taking place in art toward the end of the 19th century and called the work an impression It was meant to ridicule Monet's work and the work of his peers in general however it led to the naming of one of the most exciting movements and phases in art history Impressionism

Riverscapes and National Identities Tricia Cusack, 2010-03-02 Painted riverscapes such as Claude Monet's impressions of the Seine Isaak Levitan's Volga views or Thomas Cole's Hudson scenery became iconic not least because they embodied nationalist ideas about place and about culture At a time when nationalism was taking root across Europe and the United States the riverscape played an important role in transforming the abstract idea of the nation into a potent visual image. It not only offered a picture of the nation's physical character but through aspects such as style, the figures portrayed, and the nature of the implied spectator, it presented a cultural ideal. In this highly original book, Tricia Cusack explores the significance of painted riverscapes to the creation of national identities in nineteenth and early twentieth century Europe and America. Focusing on five rivers—the Hudson, the Volga, the Seine, the Thames, and the Shannon—the author outlines the history of the development of national landscapes, elaborating on the distinctive nature of riverscapes. Drawing on the symbolic potential of rivers to represent life and time, the riverscape provided a metaphor for the mythic stream of national history flowing unimpeded out of the past and into the future.

Monet's Minutes André Dombrowski, 2023-01-01 A stunning exploration of the vital links between Claude Monet's Impressionism and the time technologies that helped define modernity in the nineteenth century. Monet's Minutes is a revelatory account charting the relationship between the works of Claude Monet (1840–1926), founder of French Impressionism and one of the world's best known painters, and the modern experience of time. Andr Dombrowski illuminates Monet's celebration of instantaneity in the context of the late nineteenth century time technologies that underwrote it. Monet's version of Impressionism demonstrated an acute awareness of the particularly modern pressures of time, but until now scholars have not examined the histories and technologies of time and timekeeping that informed Impressionism's major stylistic shifts. Arguing that the fascination with instantaneity rejected the dulling cultures of newly routinized and standardized time, Monet's Minutes traces the evolution of Monet's art to what were then seismic shifts in the shape of time itself. In each chapter, Dombrowski focuses on the connections between a set of Monet's works and a specific technology or experience of time, while providing the voices of period critics responding to Impressionism. Grounded in exceptional research and analyses, this book offers new interpretations of key works by Monet and a fresh perspective on late nineteenth century art, society, and modern temporality.

Art and Identity at the Water's Edge Tricia Cusack, 2017-07-05 The water's edge, whether shore or riverbank, is a marginal territory that becomes invested with layers of meaning. The essays in this collection present intriguing perspectives on how the water's edge has been imagined and represented in different places at various times, and how this process contributed to the formation of social identities. Art and Identity at the Water's Edge focuses upon national coastlines and maritime heritage, on rivers and seashore as regions of liminality and sites of conflicting identities, and on the edge as a tourist setting. Such themes are related to diverse forms of art, including painting, architecture, maps, photography, and film. Topics range from the South African seaside resort of Durban to the French Riviera. The essays explore successive ideological mappings of the Jordan River and how Czech cubist architecture and painting shaped a new nationalist reading of the Vltava riverbanks. They examine post-Hurricane Katrina New Orleans as a filmic spectacle that questions assumptions about American identity, and the coast depicted as a site of patriotism in nineteenth century British painting. The collection demonstrates how waterside structures such as maritime museums and lighthouses and visual images of the water's edge have contributed to the construction of cultural and national identities

Monet at Vétheuil and on the Norman Coast, 1878-1883 David Joel, 2002 Despite the numerous books on Monet this period at Vétheuil has never before in English been examined in detail Théodore Rousseau and the Rise of the Modern Art Market Simon Kelly, 2021-03-25 The 19th century in France witnessed the emergence of the structures of the modern art market that remain until this day This book examines the relationship between the avant garde Barbizon landscape painter Théodore Rousseau 1812-1867 and this market exploring the constellation of patrons art dealers and critics who surrounded the artist It argues for the pioneering role of Rousseau his patrons and his public in the origins of the modern art market and in so doing shifts attention away from the more traditional focus on the novel careers of the Impressionists and their supporters Drawing on extensive archival research the book provides new insight into the role of the modern artist as professional It provides a new understanding of the complex iconographical and formal choices within Rousseau's work rediscovering the original radical charge that once surrounded the artist's work and led to extensive and peculiarly modern tensions with the market place

Claude Monet Nina Kalitina, Nathalia Brodskaya, 2012-01-17 For Claude Monet the designation impressionist always remained a source of pride In spite of all the things critics have written about his work Monet continued to be a true impressionist to the end of his very long life He was so by deep conviction and for his Impressionism he may have sacrificed many other opportunities that his enormous talent held out to him Monet did not paint classical compositions with figures and he did not become a portraitist although his professional training included those skills He chose a single genre for himself landscape painting and in that he achieved a degree of perfection none of his contemporaries managed to attain Yet the little boy began by drawing caricatures Boudin advised Monet to stop doing caricatures and to take up landscapes instead The sea the sky animals people and trees are beautiful in the exact state in which nature created them surrounded by air and light Indeed it was Boudin who passed on to Monet his conviction of the importance of working in the open air which Monet would in turn transmit to his impressionist friends Monet did not want to enrol at the Ecole des Beaux Arts He chose to attend a private school L'Académie Suisse established by an ex-model on the Quai d'Orfèvres near the Pont Saint Michel One could draw and paint from a live model there for a modest fee This was where Monet met the future impressionist Camille Pissarro Later in Gleyre's studio Monet met Auguste Renoir Alfred Sisley and Frédéric Bazille Monet considered it very important that Boudin be introduced to his new friends He also told his friends of another painter he had found in Normandy This was the remarkable Dutchman J.M.W. Turner His landscapes were saturated with colour and their sincerity at times even their naivety was combined with subtle observation of the Normandy shore's variable nature At this time Monet's landscapes were not yet characterized by great richness of colour Rather they recalled the tonalities of paintings by the Barbizon artists and Boudin's seascapes He composed a range of colour based on yellow brown or blue grey At the Third Impressionist Exhibition in 1877 Monet presented a series of paintings for the first time seven views of the Saint Lazare train station He selected them from among twelve he had painted at the station This motif in Monet s work is in line not only with Manet s Chemin de fer The Railway and with his own landscapes featuring trains and stations at Argenteuil but also with a trend that surfaced after the railways first began to appear In 1883 Monet had bought a house in the village of Giverny near the little town of Vernon At Giverny series painting became one of his chief working procedures Meadows became his permanent workplace When a journalist who had come from V theuil to interview Monet asked him where his studio was the painter answered My studio I ve never had a studio and I can t see why one would lock oneself up in a room To draw yes to paint no Then broadly gesturing towards the Seine the hills and the silhouette of the little town he declared There s my real studio Monet began to go to London in the last decade of the nineteenth century He began all his London paintings working directly from nature but completed many of them afterwards at Giverny The series formed an indivisible whole and the painter had to work on all his canvases at one time A friend of Monet s the writer Octave Mirbeau wrote that he had accomplished a miracle With the help of colours he had succeeded in recreating on the canvas something almost impossible to capture he was reproducing sunlight enriching it with an infinite number of reflections Alone among the impressionists Claude Monet took an almost scientific study of the possibilities of colour to its limits it is unlikely that one could have gone any further in that direction

Water and Art David Clarke,2012-01-01 Restless protean fluid evanescent despite being a challenge to represent visually water has gained a striking significance in the art of the twentieth century This may be due to the fact that it allows for a range of metaphorical meanings many of which are particularly appropriate to the modern age Water is not merely a subject of contemporary art but also a material increasingly used in art making giving it a distinct dual presence Water and Art probes the ways in which water has gained an unprecedented prominence in modern Western art and seeks to draw connections to its depiction in earlier art forms David Clarke looks across cultures finding parallels within contemporary Chinese art which draws on a cultural tradition in which water has an essential presence and is used as both a subject and a medium The book features a wealth of images by artists from East and West including Fu Baoshi Shi Tao Wei Zixi Fang Rending Leonardo da Vinci Bernini Turner Gericault Klee Matisse Monet Picasso Mondrian and Kandinsky Fast paced accessible and comprehensive Water and Art will appeal to the specialist and the general reader alike offering fresh perspectives on familiar artists as well as an introduction to others who are less well known

Soil and Stone Frances Fowle,2017-07-05 The Impressionists are world renowned for their vibrant depictions of the atmospheric effects and shimmering beauty of the French countryside These paintings often produced in Paris found an enthusiastic market in the city The inhabitants of that hub of modernity had an apparently paradoxical interest in the mythologies of rural living As the city became more and more the motive force of social change so the country was understood as the anchor of changelessness and nostalgia The essayists in this volume examine the complex relationship between country and city Their work draws widely on the contemporary culture exploring folklore and children s literature anarchism and urbanism and offers significant new insights into the work of major artists and writers including Courbet Millet Monet Van Gogh and Zola Claude Monet (1840-1926) Claude Monet, Joseph Baillio, 2007 Impressionist Gardens Clare A.
