About the Book Series The idea for the Book Series Innovation and Change in Professional Education ICPE was born in 1996 While working on another publication in this area we noticed that professional educators faced similar problems without even knowing from each other It was this observation that resulted in examining the possibilities for a new publication platform about professional education with input from different professions We wanted to develop a publication source that would bring together educators and researchers to exchange ideas and knowledge about theory research and professional practice But we were not only striving for a book series informing readers about important themes in the professions A second goal was to focus on processes of change and innovation We were heavily involved in innovations going on in our institutions and were convinced that a better understanding was needed in a wide range of issues critically important to the future of professional education It was our belief that scholarly publications about innovation processes may support fundamental change in professional education ICPE reflects our view that professional education deserves such a publication platform It aims to approach critical questions of educational innovations and to examine dynamics of educational change in various professional domains in the context of innovation processes The books will include contributions from frontline practitioners leading researchers or distinguished scholars in professional education delivering reports of empirical or theoretical research reviews interpretations of evaluation studies or descriptions of innovative approaches Learning to

Mentor-as-Praxis Lily Orland-Barak, 2010-03-10 Lily Orland Barak offers us a breathtaking work of science ction Or perhaps I should say science and ction The science side of the equation employs sophisticated technique for observing and describing interpersonal and intrapersonal dynamics among professionals in education Both dramatic and seemingly ordinary episodes in the lives of teachers in relational tension with one another are analyzed with scienti c care precision and insight The scienti c study of mentoring is like the scienti c study of soap bubbles their formation growth and sudden exit from the visible world with a nearly soundless pop Scienti c and intellectual tools can be used to describe and predict the behavior of soap bubbles to study their colors shapes surface tension and tiny mass The same is true of the study of mentoring But in both cases the greatest care must be taken to avoid popping the almost m ically elegant form to avoid destroying the delicate relationship by rushing in by heavy attempts at control or by premature dissection or even by paying attention too intensely to a private personal relationship Mentoring is best studied by being still by listening with authentic interest and by using our peripheral vision The science and the scientist have done their best work here The ction side of this ne book gives life to telling examples of mentoring in action Continuing Professional Development in Social Care Lynne
