Women Lawyers and the Origins of Professional Identity in America Virginia G. Drachman, 2025-10-01 The first women lawyers in America like many of their twentieth century counterparts had to reconcile the traditional roles assigned to women with their roles as lawyers In 1886 a group of women students and recent alumnae of the University of Michigan Law School founded the Equity Club a correspondence club for women lawyers and law students across the country who were trying to overcome geographic isolation The Equity Club became the first organization in the United States to forge professional links between women lawyers and its founding marks the origins of a collective identity among these new professionals The letters reprinted in Women Lawyers and the Origins of Professional Identity in America reveal the challenges the first women lawyers faced and reflect the diverse opinions they held on the common issues confronting them Some contended that women should be lawyers on the same terms as men while others argued that they could bring something special to the profession like morality purity ethics and humanity in contrast to the purely business and commercial qualities of law as practiced by men The discovery and publication of these letters fill a void in the documentary history of the legal profession and the history of women in America The introductory essay and the biographical information provided about the lives of the members of the Equity Club help to place the letters in the larger contexts of those histories Women Lawyers and the Origins of Professional Identity in America will prove enlightening to practicing lawyers who will find that even a hundred years later many of the letters have remarkable relevance Scholars and students in women s history American studies sociology and legal history will also find it a valuable resource

Higher Education for Women in Postwar America, 1945-1965 Linda Eisenmann,2006-01-19 Outstanding Academic Title for 2007 Choice Magazine This history explores the nature of postwar advocacy for women s higher education acknowledging its unique relationship to the expectations of the era and recognizing its particular type of adaptive activism Linda Eisenmann illuminates the impact of this advocacy in the postwar era identifying a link between women s activism during World War II and the women s movement of the late 1960s Though the postwar period has been portrayed as an era of domestic retreat for women Eisenmann finds otherwise as she explores areas of institution building and gender awareness In an era uncomfortable with feminism this generation advocated individual decision making rather than collective action by professional women generally conceding their complicated responsibilities as wives and mothers By redefining our understanding of activism and assessing women s efforts within the context of their milieu this innovative work reclaims an era often denigrated for its lack of attention to women
