by accident in a packing case mailed from Brazil The amateur botanist who cultivated it soon realized that he had something remarkable on his hands an exceptionally rare orchid never before seen on British shores It arrived just as orchid mania was sweeping across Europe and North America driving a vast plant trade that catered to wealthy private patrons as well as the fast growing middle classes eager to display exotic flowers at home Dubbed Cattleya labiata the striking purple and crimson bloom quickly became one of the most coveted flowers on both continents As tales of the flower's beauty spread through scientific journals and the popular press orchid dealers and enthusiasts initiated a massive search to recover it in its natural habitat Sarah Bilston illuminates the story of this international quest introducing the collectors and nurserymen who funded expeditions the working class plant hunters who set out to find the flower the South American laborers and specialists with whom they contracted the botanists who used the latest science to study orchids in all their varieties and the writers and artists who established the near mythic status of the lost orchid The dark side of this global frenzy was the social and environmental harm it wrought damaging fragile ecologies on which both humans and plants depended Following the human ambitions and dramas that drove an international obsession The Lost Orchid is a story of consumer desire scientific curiosity and the devastating power of colonial overreach

Authorship in Film Adaptation Jack Boozer, 2009-06-03 Authoring a film adaptation of a literary source not only requires a media conversion but also a transformation as a result of the differing dramatic demands of cinema The most critical central step in this transformation of a literary source to the screen is the writing of the screenplay The screenplay usually serves to recruit producers director and actors to attract capital investment and to give focus to the conception and production of the film project Often undergoing multiple revisions prior to production the screenplay represents the crucial decisions of writer and director that will determine how and to what end the film will imitate or depart from its original source Authorship in Film Adaptation is an accessible provocative text that opens up new areas of discussion on the central process of adaptation surrounding the screenplay and screenwriter director collaboration In contrast to narrow binary comparisons of literary source text and film the twelve essays in this collection also give attention to the underappreciated role of the screenplay and film pre production that can signal the primary intention for a film Divided into four parts this collection looks first at the role of Hollywood's activist producers and major auteurs such as Hitchcock and Kubrick as they worked with screenwriters to formulate their audio visual goals The second part offers case studies of Devil in a Blue Dress and The Sweet Hereafter for which the directors wrote their own adapted screenplays Considering the variety of writer director working relationships that are possible Part III focuses on adaptations that alter genre time and place and Part IV investigates adaptations that alter stories of romance sexuality and ethnicity
