Reflection Revisited:

The Centered Mind Peter Carruthers, 2015 The Centered Mind offers a new view of the nature and causal determinants of both reflective thinking and more generally the stream of consciousness Peter Carruthers argues that conscious thought is always sensory based relying on the resources of the working memory system This system has been much studied by cognitive scientists It enables sensory images to be sustained and manipulated through attentional signals directed at midlevel sensory areas of the brain When abstract conceptual representations are bound into these images we consciously experience ourselves as making judgments or arriving at decisions Thus one might hear oneself as judging in inner speech that it is time to go home for example However our amodal non sensory propositional attitudes are never actually among the contents of this stream of conscious reflection Our beliefs goals and decisions are only ever active in the background of consciousness working behind the scenes to select the sensory based imagery that occurs in working memory They are never themselves conscious Drawing on extensive knowledge of the scientific literature on working memory and related topics Carruthers builds an argument that challenges the central assumptions of many philosophers In addition to arguing that non sensory propositional attitudes are never conscious he also shows that they are never under direct intentional control Written with his usual clarity and directness The Centered Mind will be essential reading for all philosophers and cognitive scientists interested in the nature of human thought processes

A Rhetoric of Reflection Kathleen Yancey, 2016-08-15 Reflection in writing studies is now entering a third generation Dating from the 1970s the first generation of reflection focused on identifying and describing internal cognitive processes assumed to be part of composing The second generation operating in both classroom and assessment scenes in the 1990s developed mechanisms for externalizing reflection making it visible and thus explicitly available to help writers Now a third generation of work in reflection is emerging As mapped by the contributors to A Rhetoric of Reflection this iteration of research and practice is taking up new questions in new sites of activity and with new theories It comprises attention to transfer of writing knowledge and practice teaching and assessment portfolios linguistic and cultural difference and various media including print and digital It conceptualizes conversation as a primary reflective medium both inside and outside the classroom and for individuals and collectives and articulates the role that different genres play in hosting reflection Perhaps most important in the work of this third generation is the identification and increasing appreciation of the epistemic value of reflection of its ability to help make new meanings and of its rhetorical power for both scholars and students Contributors Anne Beaufort Kara Taczak Liane Robertson Michael Neal Heather Ostman Cathy Leaker Bruce Horner Asao B Inoue Tyler Richmond J Elizabeth Clark Naomi Silver Christina Russell McDonald Pamela Flash Kevin Roozen Jeff Sommers Doug Hesse      Reflection in Learning and Professional Development Jennifer A. The Neuropsychology of the Unconscious: Integrating Brain and Mind in Psychotherapy (Norton Series on Interpersonal Neurobiology) Efrat Ginot, 2015-06-08 A scientific take on the still central therapeutic concept of the unconscious More than one hundred years after Freud began publishing some of his seminal theories the concept of the unconscious still occupies a central position in many theoretical frameworks and clinical approaches When trying to understand clients internal and interpersonal struggles it is almost inconceivable not to look for unconscious motivation conflicts and relational patterns Clinicians also consider it a breakthrough to recognize how our own unconscious patterns have interacted with those of our clients Although clinicians use concepts such as the unconscious and dissociation in actuality many do not take into account the newly emerging neuropsychological attributes of nonconscious processes As a result assumptions and lack of clarity overtake information that can become central in our clinical work This revolutionary book presents a new model of the unconscious one that is continuing to emerge from the integration of neuropsychological research with clinical experience Drawing from clinical observations of specific therapeutic cases affect theory research into cognitive neuroscience and neuropsychological findings the book presents an expanded picture of nonconscious processes The model moves from a focus on dissociated affects behaviors memories and the fantasies that are unconsciously created to viewing unconscious as giving expression to whole patterns of feeling thinking and behaving patterns that are so integrated and entrenched as to make them our personality traits Topics covered include the centrality of subcortical regions automaticity repetition and biased memory systems role of the amygdala and its sensitivity to fears in shaping and coloring unconscious self systems self narratives therapeutic enactments therapeutic resistance defensive systems and narcissism therapeutic approaches designed to utilize some of the new understandings regarding unconscious processes and their interaction with higher level conscious ones embedded in the prefrontal cortex

Social Domains of Truth Lambert Zuidervart, 2023-03-10 Truth is in trouble In response this book presents a new conception of truth It recognizes that prominent philosophers have questioned whether the idea of truth is important Some have asked why we even need it Their questions reinforce broader trends in Western society where many wonder whether or why we should pursue truth Indeed some pundits say we have become a post truth society Yet there are good reasons not to embrace the cultural Zeitgeist or go with the philosophical flow reasons to regard truth as a substantive and socially significant idea This book explains why First it argues that propositional truth is only one kind of truth an important kind but not all important Then it shows how propositional truth belongs to the more comprehensive process of truth as a whole This process is a dynamic correlation between human fidelity to societal principles and a life giving disclosure of society The correlation comes to expression in distinct social domains of truth where either propositional or nonpropositional truth is primary The final chapters lay out five such domains science politics art religion and philosophy Anyone who cares about the future of truth in society will want to read this pathbreaking book
