Servility And Service:

The Victorian Novel, Service Work, and the Nineteenth-Century Economy Joshua Gooch, 2015-08-13 This book offers a much needed study of the Victorian novel's role in representing and shaping the service sector's emergence. Arguing that prior accounts of the novel's relation to the rise of finance have missed the emergence of a wider service sector, it traces the effects of service work's many forms and class positions in the Victorian novel. The Safeguard of the Sea N A M Rodger, 2004-10-07 Throughout Britain's history, one factor above all others has determined the fate of the nation: its navy. N A M Rodger's definitive account reveals how the political and social progress of Britain has been inextricably intertwined with the strength and weakness of its sea power, from the desperate early campaigns against the Vikings to the defeat of the great Spanish Armada. Covering policy, strategy, ships, recruitment, and weapons, this is a superb tapestry of nearly 1,000 years of maritime history. No other historian has examined the subject in anything like the detail found here. The result is an outstanding example of narrative history. Barry Unsworth, Sunday Telegraph. Ethics and the Between William Desmond, 2001-02-01 Articulates the necessity for a comprehensive reconstructive thinking about the meaning of being good.

From Products to Services Laurie Young, 2008-05-05 During the last thirty years, a wide range of product companies throughout the Western economies have considered moving into or setting up service businesses. Some have rejected the idea after careful consideration; some have wandered into competitive services without any real idea of what is involved; and others have deliberately executed a carefully considered strategic manoeuvre. Included in this debate are some of the most famous business names in the Western world: Unisys, Ericsson, Michelin, Nokia, and HP. For IBM, it was Lou Gerstener's big bet; at GE, it was one of former CEO Jack Welch's four major strategies; and at General Motors, the financial services arm was its most profitable business for many years. Yet very little has been published on this profound transition. As a result, myths and idiocies abound. Some routinely claim that the evolution from products through services to solutions is inevitable. Others think that manufacturing is being outsourced to China and India, while American or European teenagers face a career in hamburger stalls. The truth is much more fascinating. To succeed in a service business, most functions of a product company need to change: Operations, management, recruitment, finance, sales, new product development, and marketing must all be adjusted. So the move into service therefore involves huge risk, caused by disruptive and radical change. What has pushed realistic business people in such widely different industrial sectors to take so large a risk? Does their experience contain lessons or warnings for others? Is the trend likely to continue and affect other parts of the world as their economies develop? Will India, China, or other developing economies need to learn how to export service once their manufacturing industries mature? Written by a successful businessman who has been at the heart of these changes in several companies and with case studies from companies like IBM, Unilever, BT, Michelin, Ericsson, and Nokia, this book explores the experience of those who have made the transition and some who have resisted it. It covers in depth subjects such as strategic focus change.

management service operations branding a service business service sales and service marketing It is the first major work on this subject This book is a must read for those considering the plunge into service growth and innovation Even those companies that have already taken the plunge will gain fresh perspective Jim Spohrer Director IBM Almaden Research Centre USA Laurie Young details in very practical ways the reasons and methodologies for change I would recommend this book to every one of my customers Douglas Morse Managing Principal for the Services Transformation and Innovation Group LLC I am thrilled with the publication of this much needed book In my work with businesses around the globe I find that grappling with the challenge of transforming a company from products to services is a compelling priority for increasing numbers of firms Stephen W Brown PhD Carson Chair Professor and Executive Director Center for Services Leadership W P Carey School of Business Arizona State University
