Should Taxpayer Support Arts:

Should the Taxpayer Support the Arts? David Sawers, 1993 In this IEA classic first published in 1993 David Sawers examines the arguments for state support of the arts and finds them unconvincing The development of artistic talent should be left to individuals and the Arts Council should be abolished Subsidy is undesirable because the people who benefit from it are likely to be richer than those who pay for it and because it allows governments and government agencies to influence the development of the arts

A New Economic Theory of Public Support for the Arts Arnaldo Barone, 2015-12-14 Should the arts receive public support Can the arts survive in a modern capitalist society Can economics shed light on the nature of public support and whether there is a rationale for public intervention This book undertakes to examine these questions as it explores the ways government and public resources are used to support the arts This book applies a Veblenian approach to understanding economic development to investigate public support for the arts in an effort to determine whether this approach can elucidate economic rationales for public support Divided into three parts the first provides basic information on public support for the arts by surveying support in the United States and Australia Part two includes a neoclassical overview of the topic while part three presents Veblen's ideas on economic development This book will be of interests to researchers concerned with cultural and institutional economics as well as political economy

Public Policy and the Arts: A Comparative Study of Great Britain and Ireland Ruth-Balandina M. Quinn, 2018-08-20 First published in 1998 this volume considers the subject of arts policy as a subject of public policy making proper in UK and Ireland with a particular focus on theatre as a profession rather than a mere hobby Previous studies have placed the burden of policy improvements on the arts themselves looking at what the arts can do to be worthy of government funding and favourable policy and have seen government actions as if they have a uniform effect This study takes the arts out of the abstract and discusses specific ways that diverse activities with even more diverse needs can be best approached with government policy assessing the strengths and weaknesses of government initiatives It is aimed at both political scientists and anyone with an interest in arts and cultural policy

Is Art Good for Us? Joli Jensen, 2002 Are the arts good for us This book questions our taken for granted assumptions about the transformational powers of high culture by critiquing an instrumental American heritage of beliefs about the arts Jensen argues that faith in high culture's unproven ability to transform people and society allows social critics to keep faith with the idea of a democratic society while deploring popular culture Employing perspectives from Tocqueville and Dewey she argues that the arts are good but they don't do good Instead of expecting the arts to improve things and blaming the media for ruining them we need to recognize that it is up to us not the arts to make the world a better place

Funding the Arts Andrew Pinnock, 2023-10-04 Who funds creative and cultural projects and why This insightful book analyses how the arts have been funded in a variety of political environments helping readers understand how politics and economics intersect to support cultural life Employing the UK Arts Council as an historical case study the author explores the politics of arts funding and how artists and audiences adapt their behaviour around evolving incentives In focusing on how arts funding has worked in practice the book allows readers to develop their understanding of economics principles in the cultural sector With a balance between historical and contemporary themes the book provides fundamental insights into cultural economics and policy As such it is required reading for students and practitioners who want to know how arts funding professionals make decisions

A Reader on Audience Development and Cultural Policy Steven Hadley,2024-02-22 This book brings together for the first time twenty two chapters on arts marketing and audience development Edited and curated to be accessible to both academics and those working in the cultural sector the book provides an invaluable resource for anyone interested in the traditions philosophies and approaches which underpin our ideas about increasing audiences for the arts Covering a range of topics and international perspectives it tells the story of how arts marketing and audience development came to be such an important management practice in the cultural sector This edited volume discusses the relationship of audience development to arts management and cultural policy and outlines the foundational arguments which have led to contemporary debates around everyday creativity and cultural democracy By providing vital insights from both the theory and practice of arts marketing and audience development the book will serve as an excellent reference work for researchers Simultaneously this book will also be an invaluable read for those working in cultural leadership and arts management roles The chapters in this book were originally published in various Routledge journals

New York Magazine ,1995-02-06 New York magazine was born in 1968 after a run as an insert of the New York Herald Tribune and quickly made a place for itself as the trusted resource for readers across the country With award winning writing and photography covering everything from politics and food to theater and fashion the magazine s consistent mission has been to reflect back to its audience the energy and excitement of the city itself while celebrating New York as both a place and an idea

Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations for 1983 United States. Congress. House. Committee on Appropriations. Subcommittee on the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies,1983 American Parties in Context Robert Harmel,Matthew Giebert,Kenneth Janda,2016-04-14 Roughly sixty five years ago a group of political scientists operating as the Committee on Political Parties of the American Political Association thought long and hard about whether the American parties were adequately serving their democracy and made specific recommendations for improvements Comparing the parties of this country to those of Great Britain the Committee found the American parties to be lacking in such fundamentals as clear policy differences strong and effective organization and unity of purpose among each party s representatives in public offices Starting from that background this book is intended to significantly enhance students understanding of the American parties today by putting them in broader context How do the twenty first century Democrats and Republicans compare to the APSA Committee s responsible parties model of the mid twentieth And how do the American parties compare to parties of other democracies around the world including especially the British parties Harmel Giebert and Janda answer those questions and in the process demonstrate that the American parties have moved significantly in the direction of the responsible parties model but while showing little inclination for implementing the greater discipline the Committee thought essential Already having provided as much ideological choice as the British parties the US parties have now edged closer on the other critical requirement of legislative cohesion The authors show that the latter has resulted naturally from the greater homogenization of the meaning of Democrat and Republican across the country both within the electorate and now within Congress as well The dramatic increase in cohesion is not the product of greater party discipline but rather of sectoral realignments

Artangel and Financing British Art Charlotte Gould, 2018-07-11 The Artangel Trust has been credited with providing artists with all the money and logistics they need to create one off dream projects An independent art commissioning agency based in London it has operated since 1985 and is responsible for producing some of the most striking ephemeral and site specific artworks of the last decades from Rachel Whiteread s House to Jeremy Deller s The Battle of Orgreave Artangel s existence spans three decades which now form a coherent whole in terms of both art historical and political periodisation It was launched as a reaction to the cuts in funding for the visual arts introduced by the Thatcher government in 1979 and has since adapted in a distinctive way to changing cultural policies Its mixed economic model the recourse to public private and corporate funds is the result of the more general hybridisation of funding encouraged by successive governments since the 1980s and offers a contemporary case study on broader questions concerning the specificities of British art patronage This book aims to demonstrate that the singular way its directors have responded to the vagaries of public funding and harnessed new national attitudes to philanthropy has created a sustainable independent model but also that it has been reflected more formally in their approach to site The locational art produced by the agency has indeed mirrored new distinctions between public and private spaces it has reflected the social and economic changes the country has gone through and accompanied the new cultural geographies shaping London and the United Kingdom Looking into whether their funding model might have had a formal incidence on the art they helped produce and on its relation to notions of publicness and privacy the study of Artangel gives a fresh insight into new trends in British site specific art Commissioner of Internal Revenue V. Chicago Graphics Arts Federation, Inc ,1942 Sounds, Ecologies, Musics Aaron S. Allen, Jeff Todd Titon, 2023 Sounds Ecologies

Musics poses exciting challenges and provides fresh opportunities for scholars scientists environmental activists musicians and listeners to consider music and sound from ecological standpoints Authors in Part I examine the natural and built environment and how music and sound are woven into it how the environment enables music and sound and how the natural and cultural production of music and sound in turn impact the environment In Part II contributors consider music and sound in relation to ecological knowledges that appear to conflict with yet may be viewed as complementary to Western science traditional and Indigenous ecological and environmental knowledges Part III features multidisciplinary and interdisciplinary approaches by scholars scientists and practitioners who probe the ecological imaginary regarding the complex ideas and contested keywords that characterize ecomusicology sound music culture society environment and nature A common theme across the book is the idea of diverse ecologies Once confined to the natural sciences the word ecology is common today in the social sciences humanities and arts yet its diverse uses have become imprecise and confusing Engaging the conflicting and complementary meanings of ecology requires embracing a both and approach Diverse ecologies are illustrated in the methodological terminological and topical variety of the chapters as well as the contributors choice of sources and their disciplinary backgrounds In times of mounting human and planetary crises Sounds Ecologies Musics challenges disciplinarity and broadens the interdisciplinary field of ecomusicologies These theoretical and practical studies expand sonic scholarly and political activism from the diversity equity inclusion agenda of social justice to embrace the more diverse and inclusive agenda of ecocentric ecojustice
