Leveraging Co-created Knowledge in Multi-sector University-Industry Collaboration Ehab Abu Sa'a, 2025-04-16 In an era of accelerating technological complexity and societal transformation multi sector university industry collaborations UICs have become vital arenas for co creating and exchanging knowledge across institutional and industrial boundaries Yet industrial organizations often struggle to harness the full potential of such collaborations particularly when it comes to effectively sharing recognizing and leveraging knowledge among diverse actors from different industries Much of the existing research remains centered on the academic perspective of UIC typically portraying universities as the primary source of knowledge Such a framing tends to overlook the industrial perspective especially the potential of industry to industry knowledge sharing and the perspective of firms with limited UIC experience Furthermore previous research has largely focused on dyadic university industry ties and immediate project level outcomes with less attention to the structural organizational and social dynamics that support knowledge exchange across industries and how this knowledge is later integrated within firms and diffused to the broader knowledge ecosystem This thesis addresses these gaps by exploring how collaboration level structures and firm level actions influence the sharing and leveraging of knowledge within and beyond multi sector UICs It is based on a compilation of five empirical research articles grounded in case studies of multi sector UIC initiatives in Sweden and Denmark involving diverse industries academic actors and intermediaries Data was collected mainly through interviews and observations The analysis covers collaboration structures and practices boundary spanning roles industrial engagement strategies and actions related to internal knowledge dissemination The thesis makes three key contributions First it identifies collaboration level structures both formal and informal that support cross industry knowledge sharing and ecosystem shaping Second it highlights industrial level actions that enable deep internal knowledge integration with attention to experience engagement and organizational readiness Third it offers a framework of pathways and antecedents to leveraging knowledge in multi sector UICs emphasizing the interplay of structures social capital and industrial engagement These insights provide practical implications for industrial organizations UIC managers and policymakers aiming to foster impactful inclusive and sustainable collaborations

Quality Management Implementation in Higher Education: Practices, Models, and Case Studies Sony, Michael, Karingada, Kochu Therisa, Baporikar, Neeta, 2019-08-02 Although initially utilized in business and industrial environments quality management systems can be adapted into higher education to assess and improve an institution's standards. These strategies are now playing a vital role in educational areas such as teaching learning and institutional level practices. However, quality management tools and models must be adapted to fit with the culture of higher education. Quality Management Implementation in Higher Education Practices Models and Case Studies is a pivotal reference source that explores the challenges and solutions of designing quality management models in the current educational culture. Featuring research on topics such as Lean Six Sigma distance education and student supervision, this book is ideally designed for school board members, administrators, deans, policymakers, stakeholders, professors, graduate students, education professionals, and researchers seeking current research on the applications and success factors of quality management systems in various facets of higher education.

Trends and Challenges in Science and Higher Education Hugo Horta, Manuel Heitor, Jamil Salmi, 2015-12-01 This book discusses the role that integrated science and higher education policies may play in further democratizing and promoting social economic development in Latin America. It suggests that such democratizing and development may be achieved in two complementary ways: i) broadening the access to knowledge through formal learning processes of higher education and ii) promoting the advanced qualification of people while strengthening research institutions. The book shows how this entails a complex process of policy integration with an emphasis on human resources and institutional issues combined in processes of technical change. It discusses in detail the three main challenges that most Latin American countries face in a globalized age based on knowledge and ever evolving learning processes. These challenges are the need to broaden the access to higher education to make this access more socially balanced and to recover from a long gap in investing in knowledge production and dissemination. This book treats these issues from a variety of conceptual and methodological perspectives that present a contribution to the field of science policy and higher education studies and inform policymakers in Latin America.
