New Economy And Economic Growth In Europe And The U S:

The New Economy and Economic Growth in Europe and the US David B. Audretsch, Paul J.J. Welfens, 2013-06-29

The strong productivity growth of the US and Scandinavian countries in Europe in the 1990s has raised the question whether the ICT sector information and communication technology that is computers plus telecommunications plus digital services is the new driving engine of high growth in leading OECD countries. Judging by the empirical evidence for the US including a new study by McKinsey which gives mixed evidence it is still too early to clearly dismiss Robert G Gordon's hypothesis that the acceleration of US output growth is due to cyclical factors and increased productivity growth in the computer sector. The counter hypothesis is associated with research by Stiroh and others who argue that there are positive productivity spillover effects from ICT to other sectors. Indeed it is not clear ex ante whether mainly the Old Economy or the so called New Economy stands to benefit most from high innovation rates and strong productivity shifts associated with the spreading of digital services. Interestingly the increased economic role of the internet also contributes to the internationalization of the economy since more services have become tradable and growing import competition itself could stimulate productivity growth and thus contribute to higher growth. If ICT plays a key role in the new economy there are important implications in the differential degree to which Germany and the US have implemented ICT.

The New Economy and Economic Growth in Europe and the US David B. Audretsch, Paul J.J.

Welfens, 2002-04-10 There are many issues relating to the new economy in Europe and the USA that are unexplored. Here the authors present innovative theoretical and empirical analysis on Internet dynamics, productivity growth and organizational changes in selected OECD countries. New empirical findings related to telecommunications, Internet and growth also are presented. Based on the theoretical and empirical analyses various policy options are developed. Policy measures both at the regional and national levels can stimulate structural change, knowledge diffusion and economic growth. Different governance strategies for the Internet and e-commerce are identified from a global perspective.

The Economic and Financial Market Consequences of Global Ageing Kieran McMorrow, Werner Röger, 2012-11-07

Many countries will be confronted with ageing populations in the coming decades. This will crucially affect the economic outlook for the economy. Population changes directly affect the size of the labour force and consequently potential employment and output growth. In addition changes in demographic trends strongly influence savings and investment behaviour, the outlook for the public finances, a range of financial market variables and more controversially may impact on the pace of productivity growth in an economy. Because the timing and magnitude of demographic changes varies significantly across regions, international capital flows will play an important role for the allocation of investment. This book offers a comprehensive treatment of ageing related issues based on a five region overlapping generations model and provides a quantitative assessment until 2050.
