Resolver los problemas de la dualidad: La Tercera y la autoconciencia

Dr. Michele Minolli y Dra. María Luisa Tricoli ①

Situando el concepto de tercero en el debate sobre la contratransferencia iniciado en la década de 1950, los autores sostienen que se originó para resolver problemas derivados del reconocimiento de que el encuentro analítico tiene lugar entre dos sujetos individuales. Este reconocimiento puede acarrear malestar para el analista, una vez que se han perdido los criterios objetivos para interpretar la realidad debido a la adhesión a una perspectiva constructivista dialéctica; también implica una implicación más profunda derivada del abandono de la neutralidad. A menudo se invoca el concepto de tercero para evitar estos riesgos. Sin embargo, los autores sostienen que sólo el propio sujeto humano puede captar reflexivamente el yo; este punto de vista tiene un referente en el concepto hegeliano de autoconciencia y también está respaldado por los hallazgos de la investigación infantil.

Introducción

El concepto de tercero es peculiar de nuestra época y está estrechamente ligado a la aparición del concepto de subjetividad. En la filosofía clásica, el individuo no era consciente de sí mismo como sujeto pensante.¹ El pensamiento era un dato y, como tal, tenía un estatus ontológico como cualquier otro objeto existente. La necesidad de objetividad, es decir, de verdad del pensamiento, surgió cuando el mundo clásico entró en crisis. Sólo entonces se empezó a sentir que el pensamiento era algo interno que dependía de ellos. El sujeto comenzó a percibirse a sí mismo como diferente y ajeno al objeto. La duda de Descartes, metodológicamente dirigida a todo lo existente, condujo a la idea de una separación adecuada entre pensamiento y realidad, desencadenando la búsqueda de un vínculo entre estos dos términos.

En los siglos posteriores, para comprender la relación entre sujeto y objeto, los filósofos eliminaron uno de los dos términos -la realidad- del problema. Al intentar una solución, en un momento dado absolutizaron el pensamiento intelectual, que se consideraba liberado de la realidad; después consideraron la percepción como la única forma de conocimiento, o establecieron una separación irreductible entre pensamiento y Praxis, como en la solución kantiana. De hecho, en la época moderna, el conocimiento conceptual prevalece sobre cualquier otra forma de conocimiento.

La obra de Hegel (1807) adopta una perspectiva diferente. Hegel aborda la dicotomía entre pensamiento y realidad de un modo nuevo y original. Sostiene que la consideración conjunta de estos dos factores, por oposición a uno u otro por separado, da lugar a problemas insolubles, y que es necesario resolver esta dicotomía mediante un proceso dialéctico. Lo que parece distinto del pensamiento -es decir, la realidad- es ese aspecto de nosotros mismos que no conocemos. Superar las certezas perceptivas e intelectuales es una característica del "devenir" humano. No se lleva a cabo de forma lineal, sino dentro de un continuo de afirmaciones y negaciones propias de la autoconciencia.

Tras esbozar brevemente los factores históricos que dieron origen al tema de la tercera, sostendremos que la autoconciencia- cuyo objetivo es alcanzar una cualidad especial que Hegel llama "presencia" del yo-sujeto a sí mismo²-sirve de solución a los inevitables problemas que implica el reconocimiento de la dualidad. Para ello, tendremos en cuenta los datos que se desprenden de la investigación infantil y estableceremos también un vínculo con el pensamiento hegeliano.

Hay un punto que nos gustaría aclarar primero: Cuando nos referimos al ser humano y a su dimensión psíquica, preferimos hablar

² La presencia del yo-sujeto a sí mismo es la capacidad humana de descubrir y aceptar lo que nuestra vida nos presenta como nuestra propia realidad.
