Natural Language Information Retrieval T. Strzalkowski, 2013-04-17 The last decade has been one of dramatic progress in the field of Natural Language Processing NLP This hitherto largely academic discipline has found itself at the center of an information revolution ushered in by the Internet age as demand for human computer communication and information access has exploded Emerging applications in computer assisted information production and dissemination automated understanding of news understanding of spoken language and processing of foreign languages have given impetus to research that resulted in a new generation of robust tools systems and commercial products Well positioned government research funding particularly in the U S has helped to advance the state of the art at an unprecedented pace in no small measure thanks to the rigorous 1 evaluations This volume focuses on the use of Natural Language Processing in Information Retrieval IR an area of science and technology that deals with cataloging categorization classification and search of large amounts of information particularly in textual form An outcome of an information retrieval process is usually a set of documents containing information on a given topic and may consist of newspaper like articles memos reports of any kind entire books as well as annotated image and sound files Since we assume that the information is primarily encoded as text IR is also a natural language processing problem in order to decide if a document is relevant to a given information need one needs to be able to understand its content

Speech and Language Processing Dan Jurafsky, James H. Martin, 2009 This book takes an empirical approach to language processing based on applying statistical and other machine learning algorithms to large corpora Methodology boxes are included in each chapter Each chapter is built around one or more worked examples to demonstrate the main idea of the chapter Covers the fundamental algorithms of various fields whether originally proposed for spoken or written language to demonstrate how the same algorithm can be used for speech recognition and word sense disambiguation Emphasis on web and other practical applications Emphasis on scientific evaluation Useful as a reference for professionals in any of the areas of speech and language processing

WordNet Christiane Fellbaum, 1998 WordNet an electronic lexical database is considered to be the most important resource available to researchers in computational linguistics text analysis and many related areas English nouns verbs adjectives and adverbs are organized into synonym sets each representing one underlying lexicalized concept Different relations link the synonym sets The purpose of this volume is twofold First it discusses the design of WordNet and the theoretical motivations behind it Second it provides a survey of representative applications including word sense identification information retrieval selectional preferences of verbs and lexical chains      Meeting Handbook Linguistic Society of America,2007      Graph-based Natural Language Processing and Information Retrieval Rada Mihalcea,Dragomir Radev,2011-04-11 Graph theory and the fields of natural language processing and information retrieval are well studied disciplines Traditionally these areas have been perceived as distinct with different algorithms different applications and different potential end users However recent research has shown that these disciplines are intimately connected with a large variety of natural language processing and information retrieval applications finding efficient solutions within graph theoretical frameworks This book extensively covers the use of graph based algorithms for natural language processing and information retrieval It brings together topics as diverse as lexical semantics text summarization text mining ontology construction text classification and information retrieval which are connected by the common underlying theme of the use of graph theoretical methods for text and information processing tasks Readers will come away with a firm understanding of the major methods and applications in natural language processing and information retrieval that rely on graph based representations and algorithms      Documentation Abstracts ,1980      Subject Guide to Books in Print ,1993      Electric Word ,1989      Resources in education ,1982-06

British Book News British Council,1986      Natural Language Processing for Online Applications Peter Jackson,Isabelle Moulinier,2007-06-05 This text covers the technologies of document retrieval information extraction and text categorization in a way which highlights commonalities in terms of both general principles and practical concerns It assumes some mathematical background on the part of the reader but the chapters typically begin with a non mathematical account of the key issues Current research topics are covered only to the extent that they are informing current applications detailed coverage of longer term research and more theoretical treatments should be sought elsewhere There are many pointers at the ends of the chapters that the reader can follow to explore the literature However the book does maintain a strong emphasis on evaluation in every chapter both in terms of methodology and the results of controlled experimentation

Forthcoming Books Rose Arny, 1995 Information Retrieval Techniques for Speech Applications Anni R. Coden, Eric W. Brown, Savitha Srinivasan, 2003-07-31 This volume is based on a workshop held on September 13 2001 in New Orleans LA USA as part of the 24th Annual International ACM SIGIR Conference on Research and Development in Information Retrieval The title of the workshop was Information Retrieval Techniques for Speech Applications

Interest in speech applications dates back a number of decades However it is only in the last few years that automatic speech recognition has left the confines of the basic research lab and become a viable commercial application Speech recognition technology has now matured to the point where speech can be used to interact with automated phone systems control computer programs and even create memos and documents Moving beyond computer control and dictation speech recognition has the potential to dramatically change the way we create capture and store knowledge Advances in speech recognition technology combined with ever decreasing storage costs and processors that double in power every eighteen months have set the stage for a whole new era of applications that treat speech in the same way that we currently treat text The goal of this workshop was to explore the technical issues involved in applying information retrieval and text analysis technologies in the new application domains enabled by automatic speech recognition These possibilities bring with them a number of issues questions and problems Speech based user interfaces create different expectations for the end user which in turn places different demands on the back end systems that must interact with the user and interpret the user's commands

Speech recognition will never be perfect so analyses applied to the resulting transcripts must be robust in the face of recognition errors The ability to capture speech and apply speech recognition on smaller more powerful pervasive devices suggests that text analysis and mining technologies can be applied in new domains never before considered
