Complexity and Education Brent Davis, Dennis Sumara, 2014-06-03 This book explores the contributions actual and potential of complexity thinking to educational research and practice While its focus is on the theoretical premises and the methodology not specific applications the aim is pragmatic to present complexity thinking as an important and appropriate attitude for educators and educational researchers Part I is concerned with global issues around complexity thinking as read through an educational lens Part II cites a diversity of practices and studies that are either explicitly informed by or that might be aligned with complexity research and offers focused and practiced advice for structuring projects in ways that are consistent with complexity thinking Complexity thinking offers a powerful alternative to the linear reductionist approaches to inquiry that have dominated the sciences for hundreds of years and educational research for more than a century It has captured the attention of many researchers whose studies reach across traditional disciplinary boundaries to investigate phenomena such as How does the brain work What is consciousness What is intelligence What is the role of emergent technologies in shaping personalities and possibilities How do social collectives work What is knowledge Complexity research posits that a deep similarity among these phenomena is that each points toward some sort of system that learns The authors intent is not to offer a complete account of the relevance of complexity thinking to education not to prescribe and delimit but to challenge readers to examine their own assumptions and theoretical commitments whether anchored by commonsense classical thought or any of the posts such as postmodernism poststructuralism postcolonialism postpositivism postformalism postepistemology that mark the edges of current discursive possibility Complexity and Education is THE introduction to the emerging field of complexity thinking for the education community It is specifically relevant for educational researchers graduate students and inquiry oriented teacher practitioners

The Interdependence of Teaching and Learning Bryant Griffith,Douglas J. Loveless,2013-03-01 The varied chapters of this book seek to capture the complexities of teaching and learning in today s schools and they share an interest in exploring the influences of knowledge construction in the moment and over time Teaching and learning are human processes interrelated and dynamic We assembled this collection to unpack what it means to teach and to learn teasing out some of the implications and challenges of such complicated educational processes that are often misconstrued as causal or linear As educators currently residing in the United States we find this a particularly pressing agenda given the current focus on common core standards and reducing teaching and learning to conceptual and pedagogical step by step procedures Our primary concern in putting together this book was to provide a conceptual and political foundation from which to construct and defend understandings and practices of teaching and learning that embody the complexity of educational endeavors and relationships The isolation of teaching from learning and the othering of both teachers and students one from the other suggests that knowledge is synonymous with information This book challenges such assumptions The project underlying this text can be seen as a means of rethinking how teachers and students perspectives of practice and curriculum influence what learning opportunities are provided to students Chapters written by established and new thinkers in the field of education demonstrate the ways in which teachers reformulate relationships between teaching and learning in school settings Our second objective is to examine local constructions of knowledge over time and how those constructions are consequential for teacher and student learning By examining patterns of practice and processes of knowledge construction in elementary secondary and undergraduate classrooms the authors of these chapters lay a foundation for examining commonalities and differences in the construction of knowledge and practices across educational levels disciplines and in school and outof school settings
