Penan Voice For The Borneo Rain Forest:

Penan Wade Davis, Thom Henley, 1990 Deadly Dances in the Bornean Rainforest Rajindra K. Puri, 2022-07-18 For two years Rajindra Puri lived and hunted with the Penan Benalui people in the rainforest of eastern Borneo in Indonesia Here he reports on Penan hunting techniques the knowledge required to be a successful hunter and the significance of hunting for Penan communities A hunt offers the opportunity for younger Penan to learn crucial survival skills knowledge of the environment local geography genealogy history and beliefs and values Songs and stories recount hunting adventures and legends while ceremonial dances demonstrate the coordination and agility required of the expert hunter The author makes a case for using active participant observation in conjunction with standard ethnobiological research methods for documenting non verbal knowledge Included here are 21 months of hunting records and comprehensive appendices on game species and ethnobiological data This work will be useful to anthropologists conservation biologists and those interested in Indonesian ethnobiology Penan Histories Tim Bending, 2021-08-04 In the late 1980s the Penan of Sarawak East Malaysia became an environmentalist cause célèbre for a campaign of protests blockading logging roads in an attempt to preserve the rainforest areas in which they lived The explanation of this eruption of protest became a focus of political dispute Penan Histories shows how this dispute was centred on the construction of different actors as the subjects of the protests Should the protests be written off as the work of meddling environmentalists Or do the Penan have something of their own to say and examines how any narrator of social events must make such assertions and be responsible for the political consequences thereof Against this background Penan Histories sets out to re narrate the recent past of a Penan village It is an ethnographic examination of the transition from nomadism to agriculture and employment in the timber industry to protest against that industry and back once more to working as loggers a story also of cultural change collective action and individual corruption This work will be of interest for all those concerned with the ethnography of indigenous groups in South East Asia and with the politics of indigenous peoples More broadly it has significance in its consideration of the textual political issues we face in narrating and explaining the actions other people in other places Indigenous Environmental Knowledge and Its Transformations Alan Bicker, Roy Ellen, Peter Parkes, 2003-12-16 The first concerted critical examination of the uses and abuses of indigenous knowledge The contributors focus on a series of interrelated issues in their interrogation of indigenous knowledge and its specific applications within the localised contexts of particular Asian societies and regional cultures In particular they explore the problems of translation and mistranslation in the local global transference of traditional practices and representations of resources The Environment in Anthropology, Second Edition Nora Haenn, Richard Wilk, Allison Harnish, 2016-04-26 Presents ecology and current environmental studies from an anthropological point of view The Environment in Anthropology presents ecology and current environmental studies from an anthropological point of view From the classics to the most current scholarship this text connects the theory and practice in environment and anthropology

providing readers with a strong intellectual foundation as well as offering practical tools for solving environmental problems Haenn Wilk and Harnish pose the most urgent questions of environmental protection How are environmental problems mediated by cultural values What are the environmental effects of urbanization When do environmentalists goals and actions conflict with those of indigenous peoples How can we assess the impact of environmentally correct businesses They also cover the fundamental topics of population growth large scale development biodiversity conservation sustainable environmental management indigenous groups consumption and globalization This revised edition addresses new topics such as water toxic waste neoliberalism environmental history environmental activism and REDD Reducing Emissions from Deforestation and Forest Degradation and it situates anthropology in the multi disciplinary field of environmental research It also offers readers a guide for developing their own plan for environmental action This volume offers an introduction to the breadth of ecological and environmental anthropology as well as to its historical trends and current developments Balancing landmark essays with cutting edge scholarship bridging theory and practice and offering suggestions for further reading and new directions for research The Environment in Anthropology continues to provide the ideal introduction to a burgeoning field

The Environment in Anthropology Nora Haenn, Richard Wilk, 2006 Presenting ecology and current environmental studies from an anthropological point of view this book gives readers a strong intellectual foundation as well as offering practical tools for solving environmental problems

Borneo Studies in History, Society and Culture Victor T. King, Zawawi Ibrahim, Noor Hasharina Hassan, 2016-08-12 This edited book is the first major review of what has been achieved in Borneo Studies to date Chapters in this book situate research on Borneo within the general disciplinary fields of the social sciences with the weight of attention devoted to anthropological research and related fields such as development studies gender studies environmental studies social policy studies and cultural studies Some of the chapters in this book are extended versions of presentations at the Borneo Research Council s international conference hosted by Universiti Brunei Darussalam in June 2012 and a Borneo Studies workshop organised in Brunei in 2012 The volume examines some of the major debates and controversies in Borneo Studies including those which have served to connect post war research on Borneo to wider scholarship It also assesses some of the more recent contributions and interests of locally based researchers in universities and other institutions in Borneo itself The major strength of the book is the inclusion of a substantial amount of research undertaken by scholars working and teaching within the Southeast Asian region In particular there is an examination of research materials published in the vernacular notably the outpouring of work published in Indonesian by the Institut Dayakologi in Pontianak In doing so the book also addresses the urgent matters which have not received the attention they deserve specifically subjects themes and issues that have already been covered but require further contemplation elaboration and research and the scope for disciplinary and multidisciplinary collaboration in Borneo Studies The book is a valuable resource and reference work for students and researchers interested in social science scholarship on Borneo and for those with wider interests in Indonesia and Malaysia and in the Southeast Asian region Conservation and Environmental Management in Madagascar Ivan R. Scales, 2014-03-14 Madagascar is one of the most biologically diverse places on the planet the result of 160 million years of isolation from the African mainland More than 80% of its species are not found anywhere else on Earth However this highly diverse flora and fauna is threatened by habitat loss and fragmentation and the island has been classified as one of the world's highest conservation priorities Drawing on insights from geography anthropology sustainable development political science and ecology this book provides a comprehensive assessment of the status of conservation and environmental management in Madagascar It describes how conservation organisations have been experimenting with new forms of protected areas community based resource management ecotourism and payments for ecosystem services But the country must also deal with pressing human needs The problems of poverty development environmental justice natural resource use and biodiversity conservation are shown to be interlinked in complex ways Authors address key questions such as who are the winners and losers in attempts to conserve biodiversity And what are the implications of new forms of conservation for rural livelihoods and environmental justice Raven Walks Around the World Thom Henley, 2017-10-07 In 1970 twenty two year old Thom Henley left Michigan and drifted around the northwest coast getting by on odd jobs and advice from even odder characters He rode the rails built a squatter shack on a beach came to be known as Huckleberry and embarked on adventures along the West Coast and abroad that just like his Mark Twain namesake situated him in all the right and wrong places at all the right and wrong times Eventually a hippie named Stormy directed him to Haida Gwaii where upon arrival a Haida Elder affirmed to the perplexed Huckleberry that she had been expecting him From that point onward Henley's life unfolded as if destiny were at work perhaps with a little help from Raven the legendary trickster While kayaking the remote area around South Moresby Island Henley was struck by the clear cut logging and desecration of ancient Haida village sites Henley collaborated with the Haida for the next fourteen years to spearhead the largest environmental campaign in Canadian history and the creation of Gwaii Haanas National Park Later he became a co founder of Rediscovery a wilderness program for First Nations and non aboriginal youth that would become a global model for reconciliation Henley's story is peppered with a cast of unlikely characters serendipitously drawn together such as the time he hosted then Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau and entourage including five year old Justin Trudeau at his remote driftwood hippie hut the visit was unanticipated and at the time the helicopter touched down Henley and a friend were doing laundry Over and over Henley found himself at the epicentre of significant events that included a historic train caravan across Canada an epic Haida canoe voyage an indigenous rights campaign world tour for the Penan tribespeople of Borneo as well as two global disasters the 2004 South Asian tsunami and the 2015 Nepal earthquake Beautifully recounted with passion humour and humility Raven Walks around the World is a moving and thoughtful account of a life lived in harmony with the land and community World Rainforest Report ,1990 State of the World, 1993 Lester Russell Brown, 1993

Development Brokers and Translators David Lewis, David Mosse, 2006 Includes essays by some of today's leading anthropologists working in development studies. Furtheres the goals of both poverty reduction and ethnographic research by detailing their contributions to and reliance on each another. Provides a practical and theoretical resource for development agencies, policy makers and students wishing to access a variety of case studies and new analytical approaches. The success of any international development agency depends on an understanding of the ways in which a community and individuals relate to ideas and resources. David Lewis and David Mosse have brought together a number of anthropologists engaged in development research to show how ethnography can be an indispensable tool for understanding these complex and dynamic relationships. The world that this ethnography of development reveals does not divide neatly into the developers and the developed, perpetrators and victims, domination and resistance or the incompatible rationalities of scientific and indigenous knowledge. It is a world in which interests and practices are always hybrids where the realms of reason and the real world are not neatly separate and in which rational policy representations frequently conceal the messiness of practice that precedes the ideas and technologies of development. The wealth of new ideas offered in this collection will be especially valuable to graduate students in anthropology and development studies but also to undergraduates and those working in development organizations who wish to run more effective operations on every level. Other contributors: Tim Bending, Bina Desai, Amity Doolittle, Pierre Yves Le Meur, Peter Luetchford, Wiebe Nauta, Sergio Rosendo, Benedetta Rossi, Oscar Salemin, and Celayne Heaton Shrestha.

Reimagining Political Ecology Aletta Biersack, James B. Greenberg, 2006-11-22 A collection of ethnographies grounded in second generation political ecology which focuses on the interchanges between nature and culture and the local and the global.

Big Trees Not Big Stumps Paul George, Western Canada Wilderness Committee, 2006 Big Trees Not Big Stumps by co-founder of WCWC Paul George chronicles the 25 year history of the Wilderness Committee's campaigns between 1980 and 2005. Included are adventures and success stories, heart wrenching tales of our losses and candid information about behind the scenes activities that few people until now have known about. If this book motivates even one person who has never experienced the mystic nature of the wild places like Gwaii Haanas, the Stein Valley or Clayoquot Sound to begin trekking through some wilderness, it will be a success. In the Realm of the Diamond Queen Anna Lowenhaupt Tsing, 1993-11-21 In this highly original and much anticipated ethnography Anna Tsing challenges not only anthropologists and feminists but all those who study culture to reconsider some of their dearest assumptions By choosing to locate her study among Meratus Dayaks a marginal and marginalized group in the deep rainforest of South Kalimantan Indonesia Tsing deliberately sets into motion the familiar and stubborn urban fantasies of self and other Unusual encounters with her remarkably creative and unconventional Meratus friends and teachers however provide the opportunity to rethink notions of tradition community culture power and gender and the doing of anthropology Tsing's masterful weaving of ethnography and theory as well as her humor and lucidity allow for an extraordinary reading experience for students scholars and anyone interested in the complexities of culture Engaging Meratus in wider conversations involving Indonesian bureaucrats family planners experts in international development Javanese soldiers American and French feminists Asian Americans right to life advocates and Western intellectuals Tsing looks not for consensus and coherence in Meratus culture but rather allows individual Meratus men and women to return our gaze Bearing the fruit from the lively contemporary conversations between anthropology and cultural studies In the Realm of the Diamond Queen will prove to be a model for thinking and writing about gender power and the politics of identity

Ancient Pathways, Ancestral Knowledge Nancy J. Turner, 2014-06-01 Volume 1 The History and Practice of Indigenous Plant Knowledge Volume 2 The Place and Meaning of Plants in Indigenous Cultures and Worldviews Nancy Turner has studied Indigenous peoples knowledge of plants and environments in northwestern North America for over forty years In Ancient Pathways Ancestral Knowledge she integrates her research into a two volume ethnobotanical tour de force Drawing on information shared by Indigenous botanical experts and collaborators the ethnographic and historical record and from linguistics palaeobotany archaeology phytogeography and other fields Turner weaves together a complex understanding of the traditions of use and management of plant resources in this vast region She follows Indigenous inhabitants over time and through space showing how they actively participated in their environments managed and cultivated valued plant resources and maintained key habitats that supported their dynamic cultures for thousands of years as well as how knowledge was passed on from generation to generation and from one community to another To understand the values and perspectives that have guided Indigenous ethnobotanical knowledge and practices Turner looks beyond the details of individual plant species and their uses to determine the overall patterns and processes of their development application and adaptation Volume 1 presents a historical overview of ethnobotanical knowledge in the region before and after European contact The ways in which Indigenous peoples used and interacted with plants for nutrition technologies and medicine are examined Drawing connections between similarities across languages Turner compares the names of over 250 plant species in more than fifty

Indigenous languages and dialects to demonstrate the prominence of certain plants in various cultures and the sharing of goods and ideas between peoples She also examines the effects that introduced species and colonialism had on the region s Indigenous peoples and their ecologies Volume 2 provides a sweeping account of how Indigenous organizational systems developed to facilitate the harvesting use and cultivation of plants to establish economic connections across linguistic and cultural borders and to preserve and manage resources and habitats Turner describes the worldviews and philosophies that emerged from the interactions between peoples and plants and how these understandings are expressed through cultures stories and narratives Finally she explores the ways in which botanical and ecological knowledge can be and are being maintained as living adaptive systems that promote healthy cultures environments and indigenous plant populations Ancient Pathways Ancestral Knowledge both challenges and contributes to existing knowledge of Indigenous peoples land stewardship while preserving information that might otherwise have been lost Providing new and captivating insights into the anthropogenic systems of northwestern North America it will stand as an authoritative reference work and contribute to a fuller understanding of the interactions between cultures and ecological systems Rediscovered Self Ronald

Niezen,2009-05-18 In a series of thematically linked essays Ronald Niezen discusses the ways new rights standards and networks of activist collaboration facilitate indigenous claims about culture adding coherence to their histories institutions and group qualities Drawing on historical legal and ethnographic material on aboriginal communities in northern Canada Niezen illustrates the ways indigenous peoples worldwide are identifying and acting upon new opportunities to further their rights and identities He shows how within the constraints of state and international legal systems activist lobbying strategies and public ideas and expectations indigenous leaders are working to overcome the injuries of imposed change political exclusion and loss of identity Taken together the essays provide a critical understanding of the ways in which people are seeking cultural justice while rearticulating and at times re dignifying the collective self The Rediscovered Self shows how through the processes and aims of justice distinct ways of life begin to be expressed through new media formal procedures and transnational collaborations Equity Home Bias in International Finance Kavous Ardalan,2019-05-17 This book provides a comprehensive and critical analysis of research outcomes on the equity home bias puzzle that people overinvest in domestic stocks relative to the theoretically optimal investment portfolio It introduces place attachment the bonding that occurs between individuals and their meaningful environments as a new explanation for equity home bias and presents a philosophically multi paradigmatic view of place attachment For the first time a comprehensive and up to date review of the extant literature is provided demonstrating that place attachment is a contributing factor to 22 different topics in which variations of home bias are present The author also analyses the social psychological underpinnings of place attachment and considers the effect of multi culturalism on the future of equity home bias The book s unique approach discusses the issues in conceptual terms rather than through data and statistical methods This multi and inter disciplinary book is an invaluable resource for graduate students and researchers interested in economics finance philosophy and or methodology introducing them to a new line of research The Non-Western World Pradyumna Prasad Karan,2004 This introductory textbook provides an integrated up to date introduction to the lands people and cultures of the non Western world
