Pepys and the Navy C S Knighton, 2003-04-24 Pepys's diary has made him a literary celebrity In his own time he was known as the chief naval official under Charles II and James II and this aspect of the diarist's life has not received the attention it deserves from his modern biographers Charles Knighton a Pepys scholar with a particular interest in naval history reveals the full extent of Pepys's achievements in creating a modern navy which was both permanent and professional

Pepys's Later Diaries Samuel Pepys, 2006-02-15 Pepys never resumed the personal Diary which he abandoned in 1669 when he feared wrongly that he was going blind He was one of the greatest accidental historians never intending to record for posterity only his own amusement But he did write several short diaries or journals at various key moments in his later life Each is a document of historical importance and all have the interest which attaches to any work of an acknowledged master of the diary form C S Knighton for the first time makes these diaries available to the general reader These fascinating documents enlarge and enhance our picture of Pepys as a politician and civil servant As always with Pepys the tone is engaging and revealing sometimes accidentally as often in these documents Pepys is anxious to present himself in the best possible light and does not scruple to lay the blame for any mishaps on others

Sea Fortune Burkhardt Wolf, 2020-10-12 Sea fortune has always been an issue of good faith and good navigation While in antiquity fortuna gubernatrix was praised for shielding the seaborne trade in the Renaissance fortuna symbolized the conquest of chance and danger Under such auspices while relying on risk technologies modern seafaring has never lost its adventurous dimension Understanding their origin remains a challenge for the history of science and the history of literature
