Kenneth H. Rubin,Ock Boon Chung,2013-09-05 The purpose of this book is to present a rather simple argument Parents thoughts about childrearing and the ways in which they interact with children to achieve particular parenting or developmental goals are culturally determined Within any culture children are shaped by the physical and social settings within which they live culturally regulated customs and childrearing practices and culturally based belief systems The psychological meaning attributed to any given social behavior is in large part a function of the ecological niche within which it is produced Clearly it is the case that there are some cultural universals All parents want their children to be healthy and to feel secure However healthy and unhealthy at least in the psychological sense of the term can have different meanings from culture to culture Child Development Laura E. Levine,Joyce Munsch,2013-07-31 This work includes challenging misconceptions true false or multiple choice tests activities with children and adolescents The journey of research which introduces students to the process of research and much more
