Shoemaker, 1910 Pennsylvania Mountain Stories Henry Wharton Shoemaker, 1913 Pennsylvania Mountain Stories (Classic Reprint) Henry W. Shoemaker, 2015-07-26 Excerpt from Pennsylvania Mountain Stories Five years ago in 1903 I published a small volume of stories and legends called Wild Life in Western Pennsylvania which ran through two small editions After all the copies had been exhausted I continued to receive requests for the books and these have by this time reached such a number that I feel justified in bringing out this new collection of stories In this book will be found the majority of sketches contained in the earlier work together with a number of new stories which appeared in the Reporter of Centre Hall Pa the Herald of Jersey Shore Pa the Record of Bradford Pa and the Times of Reading Pa I wish to thank the good friends who showed such interest in my previous book and hope that this new volume will meet with the same kindly reception About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works Pennsylvania Mountain Stories, 1-86 Henry W. Shoemaker, 2017-08-27 The Indian Steps Henry W. Shoemaker, 2017-11-22 Excerpt from The Indian Steps And Other Pennsylvania Mountain Stories Least they came from sources equally reliable and those which were the author's personal experience more or less he can certainly vouch for He much appreciates the kindly reception from press and public which was so generously given to More Pennsylvania Mountain Stories That is another reason for the appearance of this book In it as in the previous volumes the author strives to show the variety and scope of Pennsylvania folk lore and tradition and through them hopes to give fresh vitality and interest to the localities where they occurred There is no spot of ground a hundred feet square in the Pennsylvania mountains that has not its legend Some are old as ancient as the old old forests Others are of recent making or in formation now Each one is different each is full of its own local color There are some stories in this book which contain more human interest than folk lore but they are included in order to give romance to certain places where older legends have not been secured Any story which relates to human beings will sooner or later become folk About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do

Lost in the Woods Robin Moore, 2018-10-30 Follow Author and Storyteller Robin Moore back to his boyhood home in the mountains of Central Pennsylvania where he and his grandfather spent their days on the thickly forested woods exploring the beauty and mystery of the natural world From the Introduction The first really valuable thing I lost in the woods was a Barlow pocket knife It was a knife my grandfather had given me for my eighth birthday As he handed it to me he said I guess you're old enough to have this now But I wasn't I had the knife less than a week before I lost it I'll never know for sure how it got lost One moment I had it then it was gone As soon as I knew the knife was missing I wondered if I really was old enough to have such a fine possession Fighting back tears of frustration I remember hunting for that knife going down on my hands and knees and searching through the leaves in the woods near our house But I never found it It's probably still laying out there somewhere its bone handle dulled by the weather its blade rusted the color of leaves in Autumn Since then I have lost many things in the woods hats and gloves wrist watches flashlights and compasses But probably the thing I miss the most is the loss of the woods themselves When I was a boy growing up in the mountains of Central Pennsylvania I lived right across the road from my grandfather's house just outside the town of Roopsburg In those days the woods and fields of the Appalachian foothills were still free and wild And my grandfather and I spent as much time as we could out and away from civilization roaming through the wild world But nowadays many of the places where I dreamed and played aren't wild anymore They have been chopped up into neat yards with large houses surrounded by wooden fences enclosing plastic swing sets Even worse some of our favorite places have been taken by highways and parking lots and shopping malls The wildness of those places has been lost at least for the next hundred years or so until the woods comes back to reclaim them But as every storyteller knows nothing is really lost as long as it lingers in the imagination So come along with me now and I'll take you back to some of my favorite wild spots and tell you a little about the sad and wonderful things that happened there
