Pomeroy, 2020-02-10 This book discusses urban planning and regional development practices in the twentieth century and ways in which they are currently being transformed It addresses questions such as What are the factors affecting planning dynamics at local regional national and global scales With the push to adopt a market paradigm in land development and infrastructure the relationship between resource management sustainable development and the role of governance has been transformed Centralized planning is giving way to privatization not only in the traditional regions but also in newly emerging regions of Asia Africa and Latin America Further attempts are being made to bring planning related decision making closer to the people who are most affected by it Presenting a collection of studies from scholars around the world and highlighting recent advances in the field the book is a valuable reference guide for those engaged in urban transformations whether as graduate students researchers practitioners or policymakers

Knowledge, Complexity and Innovation Systems Manfred M. Fischer, Josef Fröhlich, 2013-11-27 In recent years there has been growing scientific interest in the triangular relationship between knowledge complexity and innovation systems The concept of innovation systems carries the idea that innovations do not originate as isolated discrete phenomena but are generated through the interaction of a number of actors or agents. This set of actors and interactions possess certain specific characteristics that tend to remain over time. Such characteristics are also shared by national, regional, sectoral and technological interaction systems. They can all be represented as sets of institutional actors and interactions whose ultimate goal is the production and diffusion of knowledge. The major theoretical and policy problem posed by these systems is that knowledge is generated not only by individuals and organisations but also by the often complex pattern of interaction between them. To understand how organisations create new products, new production techniques and new organisational forms is important. An even more fundamental need is to understand how organisations create new knowledge if this knowledge creation lies in the mobilisation and conversion of tacit knowledge. Although much has been written about the importance of knowledge in management, little attention has been paid to how knowledge is created and how the knowledge creation process is managed. The third component of the research triangle concerns complexity.

The Urban Geography Reader NICK FYFE, JUDITH KENNY, 2020-04-15. Drawing on a rich diversity of theoretical approaches and analytical strategies, urban geographers have been at the forefront of understanding the global and local processes shaping cities and of making sense of the urban experiences of a wide variety of social groups. Through their links with those working in the fields of urban policy design, urban geographers have also played an important role in the analysis of the economic and social problems confronting cities. Capturing the diversity of scholarship in the field of urban geography, this reader presents a stimulating selection of articles and excerpts by leading figures. Organized around seven themes, it addresses the changing economic, social, cultural and technological conditions of contemporary urbanization and the range of personal and public responses. It reflects the academic importance of urban geography in terms of both its theoretical and empirical analysis as well as its applied policy relevance and features extensive editorial input in the form of general sections and individual extract introductions. Bringing together in one volume classic and contemporary pieces of urban geography studies undertaken in the developed and developing worlds and examples of theoretical and applied research, it provides in a convenient student-friendly format an unparalleled resource for those studying the complex geographies of urban areas.

On Shifting Foundations Kean Fan Lim, 2018-12-28. This book introduces readers to the current social and economic state of China since its restructuring in 1949. Provides insights into the targeted institutional change that is occurring simultaneously across the entire country. Presents context-rich accounts of how and why these changes connect to, if not contradict, regulatory logics established during the Mao era. A new analytical framework that explicitly considers the relationship between state rescaling, policy experimentation and path dependency. Prompts readers to think about how experimental initiatives reflect and contribute to the national strategy of Chinese development. An excellent extension of ongoing theoretical work examining the entwinement of subnational regulatory reconfiguration, place-specific policy experimentation and the reproduction of national economic advantage.

Whose Public Space? Ali

Madanipour,2010-01-21 Public spaces mirror the complexities of urban societies as historic social bonds have weakened and cities have become collections of individuals public open spaces have also changed from being embedded in the social fabric of the city to being a part of more impersonal and fragmented urban environments Can making public spaces help overcome this fragmentation where accessible spaces are created through inclusive processes This book offers some answers to this question through analysing the process of urban design and development in international case studies in which the changing character level of accessibility and the tensions of making public spaces are explored The book uses a coherent theoretical outlook to investigate a series of case studies crossing the cultural divides to examine the similarities and differences of public space in different urban contexts and its critical analysis of the process of development management and use of public space with all its tensions and conflicts While each case study investigates the specificities of a particular city the book outlines some general themes in global urban processes It shows how public spaces are a key theme in urban design and development everywhere how they are appreciated and used by the people of these cities but also being contested by and under pressure from different stakeholders Handbook of Local and Regional Development Andy Pike,Andres Rodriguez-Pose,John Tomaney,2010-11-17 The Handbook of Local and Regional Development provides a comprehensive statement and reference point for local and regional development The scope of this Handbook s coverage and contributions engages with and reflects upon the politics and policy of how we think about and practise local and regional development encouraging dialogue across the disciplinary barriers between notions of local and regional development in the Global North and development studies in the Global South This Handbook is organized into seven inter related sections with an introductory chapter setting out the rationale aims and structure of the Handbook Section one situates local and regional development in its global context Section two establishes the key issues in understanding the principles and values that help us define what is meant by local and regional development Section three critically reviews the current diversity and variety of conceptual and theoretical approaches to local and regional development Section four address questions of government and governance Section five connects critically with the array of contemporary approaches to local and regional development policy Section six is an explicitly global review of perspectives on local and regional development from Africa Asia Pacific Europe Latin America and North America Section seven provides reflection and discussion of the futures for local and regional development in an international and multidisciplinary context With over forty contributions from leading international scholars in the field this Handbook provides critical reviews and appraisals of current state of the art conceptual and theoretical approaches and future developments in local and regional development Development Centre Studies Industrial Policy and Territorial Development Lessons from Korea OECD,2012-05-16 This report reviews the Korean catching up and it analyzes the recent reforms which have been put in place to address the territorial dimension in the design and implementation of industrial policies with a view to share knowledge and policy Private Sector-Led Urban Development Projects Erwin Heurkens, 2012-09-04 Central to Private Sector led Urban Development Projects lays the concept of private sector led urban development projects Such projects involve project developers taking a leading role and local authorities adopting a facilitating role in managing the development of an urban area based on a clear public private role division Such a development strategy is quite common in Anglo Saxon urban development practices but is less known in Continental European practices Nonetheless since the beginning of the millennium such a development strategy also occurred in the Netherlands in the form of concessions However remarkably little empirical knowledge is available about how public and private actors collaborate on and manage private sector led urban development projects Moreover it remains unclear what the effects of such projects are This dissertation provides an understanding of the various characteristics of private sector led urban development projects by conducting empirical case study research in the institutional contexts of the Netherlands and the UK The book provides an answer to the following question What can we learn from private sector led urban development projects in the Netherlands and UK in terms of the collaborative and managerial roles of public and private actors and the effects of their interactions Place-making and Urban Development Pier Carlo Palermo, Davide Ponzini, 2014-12-05 The regeneration of critical urban areas through the redesign of public space with the intense involvement of local communities seems to be the central focus of place making according to some widespread practices in academic and professional circles Recently new expertise maintains that place making could be an innovative and potentially autonomous field competing with more traditional disciplines like urban planning urban design architecture and others This book affirms that the question of making better places for people should be understood in a broader sense as a symptom of the non contingent limitations of the urban and spatial disciplines It maintains that research should not be oriented only towards new technical or merely formal solutions but rather towards the profound rethinking of disciplinary paradigms In the fields of urban planning urban design and policy making the challenge of place making provides scholars and practitioners a great opportunity for a much needed critical review Only the substantial reappraisal of long standing technical cultural institutional and social premises and perspectives can truly improve place making practices The pressing need for place making implies trespassing undue disciplinary boundaries and experimenting a place based approach that can innovate and integrate planning regulations strategic spatial visioning and urban development projects Moreover the place making challenge compels urban experts and policy makers to critically reflect upon the physical and social contexts of their interventions In this sense facing place making today is a way to renew the civic and social role of urban planning and urban design Changing Spatial Elements in Chinese Socio-economic Five-year Plan: from Project Layout to Spatial Planning Lei Wang, 2018-08-01 As a legacy of the socialist state with central planning Five Year Planning FYP is very important in regulating socio economic and spatial development even in post reform China This book tries to fill the research gap between examining the role of FYP and how spatial elements in the FYP mechanism have operated and transformed in spatial regulatory practices in transitional China By building a conceptual framework and studying two empirical cases at different spatial scales with the help of both qualitative and quantitative methods it helps to understand various stakeholders institutions and planning administrations mechanisms of articulating spatial planning into the FYP system and the effectiveness of spatial planning in solving place specific governance issues in urban and regional China      U.S. Government Research & Development Reports ,1970
