Overlaid on this are several large, sharp, red geometric shapes that create a sense of depth and movement, resembling stylized wings or a large 'V' shape. Web-Based Teaching and Learning across Culture and Age Fengfeng Ke, Alicia Fedelina Chávez, 2013-05-24

With limited empirical research available on online teaching across cultures especially with Native and Hispanic American students this book will present the findings of a two year Spencer funded study in creating an inclusive i.e. multicultural and intergenerational instructional design model for online learning. The book is expected to provide the readers a field guide of teaching approach comprising pedagogical, technical, relational and other suggestions for teaching for inclusive e-learning with a foundation in the research on how students from different cultures and generation groups learn online. This two year multi-course site study as a first effort to examine online college teaching and learning effective across culture and age contributed a list of important findings on the following questions: To what extent are online learning and interaction experiences and performances consistent across varied ethnic, cultural and age groups and in what ways do they vary? What online instructional contexts do students and faculty especially non-traditional and minority students identify as supporting learning and student success? What are the relationships between online instructional contexts, online learning performance and learning success of students with diverse ethnicity, culture and age background? By consolidating the findings for the aforementioned research questions, the researchers of this study have developed a data-driven online instructional design model that can work as a field guide on cross-cultural and intergenerational teaching and learning for online education practitioners.
