The background of the cover is a light blue color, populated with various black-and-white line drawings of ship model components. On the left, a large section of a ship's hull is shown, featuring a grid of rectangular panels. Above the title, there are several small drawings of vertical masts or poles. Below the title, a long, rectangular frame with internal cross-bracing is depicted, with small circles indicating specific points of interest. To the right of this frame, there are drawings of a small cylindrical component and a larger, more complex structure that looks like a piece of rigging or a small cabin. At the bottom, there are drawings of a small rectangular block, a larger rectangular block with a decorative pattern, and a small, angled piece that might be a part of a hull or a piece of furniture.
