Negotiating Health Primary School Children At Home And School:

Negotiating Health Berry Mayall, 1994 This book takes children's accounts as starting points for studying how their health is maintained, promoted, damaged and restored at home and school. It focuses on children as social actors in the negotiation of health at home and at school and makes use of substantial data collected from 5 and 9 year olds, their mothers and the school staff in one primary school. The book considers the social world of the school as it impinges on children's health and well-being; it explores teachers' caring work, the lay health care system of the school, the contribution of the school health service and how parents and teachers interact on behalf of the children. Children, Home and School Ros Edwards, 2004-08-02 In contemporary western societies there are increasing emphases on children being the responsibility of their parents contained within the home and on their compartmentalisation into separate and protected organised educational settings. Thus home and school form a crucial part of children's lives and experiences. This book explores the key institutional settings of home and school and other educationally linked organised spaces in children's lives and the relationships between these. It presents in-depth discussions concerning new research findings from a range of national contexts and focuses on various aspects of children's and sometimes adults' own understandings and activities in home and school and after school settings and the relationship between these. The contributors assess children from a variety of backgrounds and circumstances and consider how these children see and position themselves as autonomous within connected to or regulated by home and school. Discussion of the impact of policy and practice developments on the everyday lives of these children is also included. Children's Childhoods Berry Mayall, 2002-11-01 This text explores the social status of children through consideration of their positioning in a range of social settings and in sociological theory. It focuses on children as social actors in constructing the social order and participating in it. The Human Experience Cedric Cullingford, 2019-08-08 First published in 1999, the focus of this ground-breaking study is on representing the mental world of the child with unprecedented clarity. Cedric Cullingford aims to show that this world in its normal experience by children is significantly unlike what we typically assume it to be and significantly unlike anything exposed by the most prominent research programs. Querying common assumptions about children's thinking, Cullingford begins with an outline of children's understanding which emphasizes its range and complexity along with an address of the mythology of children's intellectual incapacity and preparation for the approach to be taken in detailing children's construction of a sense of their world. The following four chapters combine to construct a description of how children approach their world, exploring theory of mind, the self, the family, the school and then the wider social and physical worlds. Cullingford achieves a vividness, immediacy and intensity not seen elsewhere using the constant medium of the child's gaze and demonstrating that the youngest child is not simply responsive but is active and critical in interrogating the world. Medicine, Charity and Mutual Aid Peter Shapely, 2016-04-29 The history of the voluntary sector in British towns and cities has received increasing scholarly attention in recent years Nevertheless whilst there have been a number of valuable contributions looking at issues such as charity as a key welfare provider charity and medicine and charity and power in the community there has been no book length exploration of the role and position of the recipient By focusing on the recipients of charity rather than the donors or institutions this volume tackles searching questions of social control and cohesion and the relationship between providers and recipients in a new and revealing manner It is shown how these issues changed over the course of the nineteenth century as the frontier between the state and the voluntary sector shifted away from charity towards greater reliance on public finance workers contributions and mutual aid In turn these new sources of assistance enriched civil society encouraging democratization empowerment and social inclusion for previously marginalized members of the community The book opens with an introduction that locates medicine charity and mutual aid within their broad historiographical and urban contexts Twelve archive based inter related chapters follow Their main chronological focus is the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries which witnessed such momentous changes in the attitudes to and allocation of charity and poor relief However individual chapters on the early modern period the eighteenth century and the aftermath of the Second World War provide illuminating context and help ensure that the volume provides a systematic overview of the subject that will be of interest to social urban and medical historians

Emotions in Social Life Gillian Bendelow, Simon J Williams, 2002-09-11 The development of a sociology of emotions is crucial to our understanding of social life as they hold the key to our understanding of social processes and sociological investigation First published in 1997 Emotions in Social Life consolidates the sociology of emotions as a legitimate and viable field of enquiry It provides a comprehensive assessment of the sociology of emotions using work from scholars of international stature as well as newer writers in the field It presents new empirical research in conjunction with innovative and challenging theoretical material and will be essential reading for students of sociology health psychology anthropology and gender studies
