Samuels,2014-07-14 In light of the increasing global competition among both multinational companies and national economies Barbara Samuels examines a source of economic tension that has broad social implications as multinational companies MNCs strive for cheaper labor and new markets less developed countries LDCs are becoming more concerned with extracting benefits from these companies to achieve their development objectives Samuels centers her study on the variables shaping the responses of MNCs to national demands while considering current debates on country risk global competitiveness and national industrial policy Advancing a micro view of the MNC and its host country in two case studies Samuels shows how an MNC subsidiary's integration with headquarters and its closeness with local government affect its management of risk and its ability to deal with LDC demands Here the author investigates the labor and investment policy changes brought about when various automotive subsidiaries interacted with national interest groups in Brazil and with the government in Mexico Both cases illustrate how the policy response of one subsidiary creates the dynamics for defensive policy changes of its competitors MNC managers and LDC policymakers can draw important conclusions Originally published in 1990 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

Liability of Multinational Corporations under International Law Menno T. Kamminga, Saman Zia-Zarifi, 2021-12-28

Business and Conflict in Fragile States Brian Ganson, Achim Wennmann, 2018-10-25 Large scale investments in fragile states in Latin America Africa the former Soviet Union and Asia become magnets for conflict which undermines business development and security International policy responds with regulation state building and institutional reform with poor and often perverse results Caught up in old ways of thinking about conflict and fragility and an age old fight over whether multinational corporations are good or bad for peaceful development it leaves business related conflicts in fragile states to multiply and fester Surveying a new strategic landscape of business and conflict Brian Ganson and Achim Wennmann conclude that neither company shareholders nor advocates for peaceful development need or should accept the growing cost of business related conflict in fragile states Drawing on decades of experience from mainstream conflict prevention and violence reduction efforts as well as promising company practice they show that even acute conflict is manageable when dealt with pragmatically locally and on its own terms The analysis and conclusions of this Adelphi book will interest policymakers business leaders and community advocates alike all those hoping to mitigate today's conflicts while helping to reduce fragility and build a firmer foundation for inclusive development
