In Tension Between Organization and Profession Carola Aili, 2007-01-01 This book describes everyday problems experienced by individuals in official positions. The authors' analyses are set against a background of rising rates of sick leave, more cases of mental burnout, decreasing resources, and constant demand for professional improvement. Rapid changes in organisations such as new forms of leadership, new technology, and management by documents and the call for client-oriented practices are part of the professional's working life. The individual professional is the prime focus of this book. Tensions that arise between the individual and the organisation/profession are illustrated by a range of examples of problems that public officials such as teachers, policemen, and nurses are confronted with on a daily basis. The authors discuss subjects such as increased individualisation, complexity in relationships, intensified pace, and fragmentation of work. This title intends to signal an invitation to further the research about a dynamic field where today's professionals meet the requirements of their professions and organisations.

Holding down the Fort Aaron Bielejewski, 2022-11-26 This Open Access book questions the relationship between institutionalized images and understandings of policing, the monolithic ideas common to most if not all Western law enforcement agencies, and contextual/situative and local interactions where the human representatives of policing, street-level officers, come into contact with residents. The political and theoretical association of specific forms of Western policing with democratic society can be illustrated in the case of German integration narratives of reform and essentially forging new democratic police agencies. In the new German states, stand at odds with much of the experience and statements of officers who continued to serve following Re-Unification. Officers who present their works primarily in terms of their local responsibilities, expectations, and more specifically to their unique and individual relationship and connection to their communities, downplay the relevance of high-level policing policy. Based on a two-year ethnographic study of policing in a rural county in the German state of Brandenburg, this book explores the local nature of policing both in terms of how police officers imagine their communities to be and with reference to broader societal expectations and assumptions of what police essentially are, can effectively do, and should effectively do.

How Real Is Reality TV? David S. Escoffery, 2014-12-03 American viewers are attracted to what they see as the non-scripted, unpredictable freshness of reality television. But although the episodes may not be scripted, the shows are constructed within a deliberately designed framework reflecting societal values. The political, economic, and personal issues of reality TV are in many ways simply an exaggerated version of everyday life, allowing us to identify perhaps more closely than we care to admit with the characters onscreen. With 16 essays from scholars around the world, this volume discusses the notion of representation in reality television. It explores how both audiences and producers negotiate the gulf between representations and truth in reality shows such as Survivor, The Apprentice, Big Brother, The Nanny, American Idol, Extreme Makeover, Joe Millionaire, and The Amazing Race. Various identity categories and character types found in these shows are discussed, and the accuracy of their television portrayal examined.

Dealing with the concept of reality audience reception gender roles minority portrayal and power issues the book provides an in depth look at what we see or think we see in reality TV Instructors considering this book for use in a course may request an examination copy here
