Antioch Review From the rich earthy simplicity of Silence in the Snowy Fields 1962 to the wild yet intricately formal ghazals of My Sentence Was a Thousand Years of Joy 2005 and the striking richness and authority of Talking into the Ear of a Donkey 2011 Bly's poetry is spiritual yet worldly celebrating the uncanny beauty of the everyday I am happy The moon rising above the turkey sheds The small world of the car Plunges through the deep fields of the night he writes in Driving Toward the Lac Qui Parle River Here is a poet moved by the mysteries of the world around him speaking the language of images in a voice brilliant and bold

We Have Tasted Heaven Many Times Robert Bly, 1999-04-07 Robert Bly has had many roles in his illustrious career He is a chronicler and mentor of young poets many of whom he presented in his series of edited books The Fifties The Sixties and The Seventies He was a leader of the antiwar movement founded the men's movement virtually by himself and published the bestseller Iron John All through these activities he has continued to deepen his own poetry a vigorous voice in a period of more academic wordsmiths Now in Eating the Honey of Words he presents the best poems he has written in the last three decades including favorites from his earlier books such as Silence in the Snowy Fields The Man in the Black Coat Turns and Loving a Woman in Too Worlds Joining these timeless classics are a number of poems from these past decades never published before as well as a complete section of marvelous new poems from the last two years This book is a chance to reread in a fresh setting many of Bly's most famous early poems and in some instances to see how they have changed over the years In this new selection one can see more clearly than ever the powerful undercurrents that carry this poetry from one book to the next Eating the Honey of Words is a brilliant collection that confirms Robert Bly's role as one of America's preeminent poets writing today The Face in the Toyota Suppose you see a face in a Toyota One day and you fall in love with that face And it is Her and the world rushes by Like dust blown down a Montana street And you fall upward into some deep hole And you can't tell God from a grain of sand And your life is changed except that now you Overlook even more than you did before And these ignored things come to bury you And you are crushed and your parents Can't help anymore and the woman in the Toyota Becomes a part of the world that you don't see And now the grain of sand becomes sand again And you stand on some mountain road weeping
