Courts and Congress Robert A. Katzmann, 2010-12-01 What role should the Senate play in the selection and confirmation of judges What criteria are appropriate in evaluating nominees What kinds of questions and answers are appropriate in confirmation hearings How do judges interpret laws enacted by Congress and what problems do they face And what kinds of communications are proper between judges and legislators These questions go to the heart of the relationship between the federal judiciary and Congress a relationship that critically shapes the administration of justice The judiciary needs an environment respectful of its mission and the legislative branch seeks a judicial system that faithfully construes its laws and efficiently discharges justice But the judicial congressional relationship is hindered by an array of issues including an ever rising judicial caseload federalization of the law resource constraints concerns about the confirmation process increasing legislative scrutiny of judicial decisionmaking and the administration of justice and debates about how the courts should interpret legislation Drawing on the world of scholarship and from personal experience Robert A. Katzmann examines governance in judicial congressional relations After identifying problems he offers ways to improve understanding between the two branches Copublished with the Governance Institute

American Agriculture and the Problem of Monopoly Jon Lauck, 2016-02-01 The breathtaking number of mergers and joint ventures among agribusiness firms has left independent American farmers facing the power of an increasingly concentrated buying sector The origin of farmers' concern with such economic concentration dates back to protests against meatpackers and railroads in the late nineteenth century Jon Lauck examines the dimensions of this problem in the American Midwest in the decades following World War II He analyzes the nature of competition within meat packing and grain markets In addition he addresses concerns about corporate entry into production agriculture and the potential displacement of a production system defined by independent family farms Lauck also considers the ability of farmers to organize in order to counter the market power of large scale agribusiness buyers He explores the use of farmer cooperatives and other mechanisms which may increase the bargaining power of farmers The book offers the first serious historical examination of the National Farmers Organization which fully embraced the bargaining power cause in the postwar period Lauck finds that independent farmers' attempts at organization have been more successful than previously recognized but he also shows that their successes have been undermined by the growing concentration and power of agribusiness firms justifying a new approach to antitrust law in agricultural markets

To Establish Justice for All Earl Johnson, 2013-11-12 For over a century many have struggled to turn the Constitution's prime goal to establish Justice into reality for Americans who cannot afford lawyers through civil legal aid This book explains how and why American statesman Sargent Shriver called the Legal Services Program the most important of all the War on Poverty programs he started American Bar Association president Edward Kuhn said its creation was the most important development in the history of the legal profession Earl Johnson Jr a former director of the War on Poverty's Legal Services Program provides a vivid account of the entire history of civil legal aid from its inception in 1876 to the current day The first to capture the full story of the dramatic ongoing struggle to bring equal justice to those unable to afford a lawyer this monumental three volume work covers the personalities and events leading to a national legal aid movement and decades later the federal government's entry into the field and its creation of a unique institution an independent Legal Services Corporation to run the program The narrative also covers the landmark court victories the attorneys won and the political controversies those cases generated along with the heated congressional battles over the shape and survival of the Legal Services Corporation In the final chapters the author assesses the current state of civil legal aid and its future prospects in the United States

Making Policy, Making Law Mark Carlton Miller, Jeb Barnes, 2004 This volume proposes a new way of understanding the policymaking process in the United States by examining the complex interactions among the three branches of government executive legislative and judicial Collectively across the chapters a central theme emerges that the U S Constitution has created a policymaking process characterized by ongoing interaction among competing institutions with overlapping responsibilities and different constituencies one in which no branch plays a single static part At different times and under various conditions all governing institutions have a distinct role in making policy as well as in enforcing and legitimizing it This concept overthrows the classic theories of the separation of powers and of policymaking and implementation specifically the principal agent theory in which Congress and the presidency are the principals who create laws and the bureaucracy and the courts are the agents who implement the laws if they are constitutional The book opens by introducing the concept of adversarial legalism which proposes that the American mindset of frequent legal challenges to legislation by political opponents and special interests creates a policymaking process different from and more complicated than other parliamentary democracies The chapters then examine in depth the dynamics among the branches primarily at the national level but also considering state and local policymaking Originally conceived of as a textbook because no book exists that looks at the interplay of all three branches it should also have significant impact on scholarship about national lawmaking national politics and constitutional law Intro conclusion and Dodd's review all give good summaries

Trading at the Speed of Light Donald MacKenzie, 2023-01-31 Trading at the Speed of Light tells the story of how many of our most important financial markets have transformed from physical trading floors on which human beings trade face to face into electronic systems within which computer algorithms trade with each other Tracing the emergence of ultrafast automated high frequency trading HFT since the early 2000s Donald MacKenzie draws particular attention to the importance of what he deems the material political economy of twenty first century finance Fast transmission of price data used to involve fibre optic cables but the strands in such cables are made of materials usually a specialised form of glass which slow light down to around two thirds of its speed in free space By contrast microwave and other wireless signals used in HFT travel through the atmosphere at nearly full light speed At these nanosecond speeds the physical nature of information transmission and the precise spatial location of the equipment involved become hugely important thus creating inevitable pinch points in the system MacKenzie details the ways in which these pinch points individual frequency bands specific locations on the roofs of computer data centres and particular sites for microwave towers are especially advantageous making it possible for those who control them to profit from that control The book draws from over 300 interviews conducted with high frequency traders around the world the people who supply them with technological systems and communication links exchange staff and regulators as well as with others who function within markets that have not yet become dominated by HFT MacKenzie focuses most closely upon the four main sites of international HFT Chicago New York Amsterdam and London and examines both the technology and the politics underpinning modern financial markets Provided by publisher
