Coldewey, Dieter W.G. Reimer, Dmytro V. Rudakov, 2012-05-15 The nuclear disaster at the Chernobyl power plant devastating floods landslides droughts the erosion of tailings dams and desertification are just some of the natural and manmade disasters which have afflicted the Ukraine and neighboring countries in recent years. It is therefore entirely appropriate that the NATO Advanced Research Workshop ARW Correlation between Human Factors and the Prevention of Catastrophes was held in Dnipropetrovsk, Ukraine, in September 2011. This book presents the proceedings of the ARW, which analyzed accumulated European theoretical knowledge and practical experience in the field of disaster prevention, addressing a wide range of correlations between human factors and the prevention of catastrophes. Subjects covered include land use planning and management procedures, risk assessment in emergency situations, control of polluted water, socio-economic impacts from desertification, health impacts arising from nuclear facilities, flooding and tailings dam accidents, risk management systems and measures, and the protection of water resources. The presentations reflected the extensive experience of workshop participants and will be of great interest, especially to countries that are developing their legal frameworks in civil emergency planning, most particularly those who are aligning to EU directives and other international standards.

Attachment theory is a concept well known to mainstream psychologists, informing the literature in areas as diverse as psychodynamics, developmental psychology, social psychology, and counselling. This important new book is the first to demonstrate the relevance of attachment theory to the psychology of sport, exercise, and wellness, opening up important new avenues for research and professional practice. In this book, author Sam Carr explains that attachment theory can help us to better understand well-established themes and processes in sport and exercise, including motivation, social relationships, cognitive models of coping, and group processes. By introducing the core elements of attachment theory and mapping out those areas in which it can inform the knowledge and practice of psychologists working in sport, exercise, and wellness, this book represents an innovative and important contribution to the psychological literature.
