

An illustration of a large steamship and a smaller sailing ship in a stormy sea. The steamship is on the right, with multiple funnels and a dark hull. The sailing ship is on the left, with its masts and rigging visible. The sea is dark and choppy, with white foam from the waves. The sky is filled with heavy, dark clouds, suggesting a storm or a very rough day at sea. The overall tone is somber and dramatic, fitting the theme of the book.

Information Technology in the Teaching of History Allan Martin,Lez Smart,David Yeomans,2013-11-26 Information technology offers powerful tools to facilitate and to assist learning across the whole curriculum the computer is certainly the most significant development in educational technology in the twentieth century History may be thought of as a staid and perhaps tradition bound subject more resistant to change than some areas Yet in history too information technology is making an impact This volume shows how information technology is currently contributing to and bringing about changes in the way history is taught and learned The international selection of the contributions shows that these phenomena are not restricted to just one country The impact of information technology on history curricula is explored in depth in one section of the book whilst other sections focus on classroom activities and issues on the development of software for history and on the relevance of current information technology developments But the question which lies at the heart of it all remains that of how information technology can enhance the teacher s ability to offer situations in which learners can form and develop a real understanding of the nature of historical processes and the ways in which they can be studied

The SS Terra Nova (1884-1943) Michael C. Tarver,2020-08-03 SS Terra Nova was most famous for being the vessel to carry the ill fated 1910 polar expedition led by Robert Falcon Scott but the story of this memorable ship built in wood to enable flexibility in the ice continued until 1943 when she sank off Greenland This newly designed and updated edition presents the definitive illustrated account of one of the classic polar exploration ships of the heroic age Put together from accounts recorded by the men who sailed in her it tells the sixty year history of a ship built by a famous Scottish shipbuilding yard in the nineteenth century days of whaling and sealing before coal gas and electricity replaced animal oils

The American Clipper Ship, 1845-1920 Glenn A. Knoblock,2014-01-23 This work offers a new and comprehensive account of the fastest and most beautiful sailing ships ever built It explores the quest for speed on the seas from the early 1800s through the fast paced times of the 1850s spurred on by the California Gold Rush of 1849 Not only are the career details of such noted ships as the Flying Cloud and Challenge discussed in detail but they are also put in context with the times in which they operated Their builders in East Coast states from Maine to Florida are discussed in detail as are the men and a woman in one instance who commanded and manned these ships The book documents the roles that owners and shipping agents played what kinds of cargo the ships carried worldwide and the unusual trades in which they participated
