Feeling Time Amit S. Yahav, 2018-03-19 Literary historians have tended to associate the eighteenth century with the rise of the tyranny of the clock the notion of time as ruled by mechanical chronometry The transition to standardized scheduling and time discipline the often told story goes inevitably results in modernity s time keeper societies and the characterization of modern experience as qualitatively diminished In Feeling Time Amit Yahav challenges this narrative of the triumph of chronometry and the consequent impoverishment of individual experience She explores the fascination eighteenth century writers had with the mental and affective processes through which human beings come not only to know that time has passed but also to feel the durations they inhabit Yahav begins by elucidating discussions by Locke and Hume that examine how humans come to know time noting how these philosophers often consider not only knowledge but also experience She then turns to novels by Richardson Sterne and Radcliffe attending to the material dimensions of literary language to show how novelists shape the temporal experience of readers through their formal choices Along the way she considers a wide range of eighteenth century aesthetic and moral treatises finding that these identify the subjective experience of duration as the crux of pleasure and judgment described more as patterned durational activity than as static state Feeling Time highlights the temporal underpinnings of the eighteenth century s culture of sensibility arguing that novelists have often drawn on the logic of musical composition to make their writing an especially effective tool for exploring time and for shaping durational experience

Stolen Pleasures Gina Berriault, 2011-07-01 Short stories and some short novels are close to poetry with the fewest words they capture the essence of a situation of a human being It s like trying to pin down the eternal moment Gina Berriault Gina Berriault was one of the great rare masters of short fiction With commendable restraint and economy she delivered stories that contain entire worlds inhabited by a range of characters thrown into all kinds of unsettling predicaments As a short story writer she had a gift for tapping into the emotions of love hope and grief and for making them palpable within her narratives No two of her stories are alike except for in the inevitable disquiet the reader feels in their wake the exquisite unease that remains at the end of such acclaimed tales as The Cove The Stone Boy and many others Now in this compelling posthumous collection Berriault s astonishing short fiction once again proves that her position as one of America s best storytellers remains unchallenged

E Mills breaks new ground Highlighting the range of theological meaning attached to the book of Ecclesiastes as a result of treating the text as a form of narrative and a story told in the first person this innovative book will appeal to all those interested in narrative criticism literary studies and interpretation and Wisdom tradition and the ancient world more widely as well as biblical scholars Walk Britain Dan French,2004-11 The annual handbook and accommodation guide of the Ramblers Association Newly designed for 2005 with additional sections and more colour photos The New Melville Studies Cody Marrs,2019-03-21 This collection reimagines Melville as both a theorist and a writer approaching his works as philosophical forms in their own right
