Walsh, 1935-12-31 The present work is restricted to the representation of functions in the complex domain particularly analytic functions by sequences of polynomials or of more general rational functions whose poles are preassigned the sequences being defined either by interpolation or by extremal properties i.e. best approximation Taylor's series plays a central role in this entire study for it has properties of both interpolation and best approximation and serves as a guide throughout the whole treatise Indeed almost every result given on the representation of functions is concerned with a generalization either of Taylor's series or of some property of Taylor's series the title Generalizations of Taylor's Series would be appropriate Rational Approximation and Interpolation P.R. rational functions determined by interpolation or least squares approximation at preselected nodes is discussed Attention is focussed on simple methods for selecting an appropriate rational space and obtaining a fairly well conditioned rational basis Applications include the determination of conformal mappings Numerical examples illustrate the approximation method
