Dietary Phytochemicals in Cancer Prevention and Treatment American Institute for Cancer Research,2012-12-06 The sixth annual research conference of the American Institute for Cancer Research was held August 31 and September 1 1995 at the Loews L'Enfant Plaza Hotel in Washington DC In view of the promising leads in the diet nutrition and cancer research field the conference was devoted to Dietary Phytochemicals in Cancer Prevention and Treatment The number of sessions was increased over that in previous conferences in order to accommodate the topics of interest The conference overview entitled Plants and Cancer Food Fiber and Phytochemicals provided a framework for the following sessions In addition the attendees were reminded that for several decades epidemiologists have noted a lower risk of lung esophageal stomach and colon cancer in populations consuming diets high in fruits and vegetables However isolation and ingestion of individual protective factors are not the preferred action since the complexity of the food and the matrix in which nutritional factors are embedded are important The individual sessions then provided more insight as to why eating fruits and vegetables is associated with a lower risk of cancer The first of these sessions was on Isothiocyanates that induce both the Phase I and Phase II enzymes that increase detoxification and conjugation reactions thus causing more rapid removal of any xenobiotic or carcinogen Thus less carcinogen is available for interaction with DNA or other critical cellular macromolecules

Dietary Fats, Lipids, Hormones, and Tumorigenesis David Heber, David Kritchevsky, 2012-12-06 This book was inspired by a gathering of scientists in Los Angeles in 1994 under the auspices of the UCLA Clinical Nutrition Research Unit which is funded by the National Cancer Institute to promote new research into nutrition and cancer prevention This unit supports research integrating basic and metabolic clinical investigations which examine observations from epidemiologic studies and their application to the prevention of common forms of cancer through nutritional intervention There is a great deal of information from epidemiologic experimental and metabolic studies implicating elements of the diet as important in the development and progression of common forms of cancer including breast cancer colon cancer prostate cancer and uterine cancer When these forms of cancer are examined carefully it is clear that they share a number of common etiologic factors related to dietary fat lipids and hormones A human cancer is usually discovered at a point where it has formed a detectable mass For many forms of cancer this may require 10 to 15 years from the time when the cancer is first initiated Nutritional efforts at prevention may delay the progression of cancer to a detectable mass resulting in reduced incidence and may retard the clinical progression and metastatic spread of cancer after its primary treatment
