Responding To Emergencies And Fostering Development The Dilemmas Of Humanitarian Aid:

Responding to Emergencies and Fostering Development Claire Pirotte, Bernard Husson, Francois

Grunewald, 1999-10-27 Civil wars genocides natural disasters and other emergencies multiplied in the 1990s and not just in the South but in the Balkans and the former Soviet bloc This book examines how to respond to the fundamental difficulties thrown up by these humanitarian crises What kind of aid in particular should be brought in when the situation on the ground mixes up emergency relief with the longer term process of development The book includes many different voices and embodies an open ended debate about the whole diverse process of international aid The experiences and lessons it contains are relevant to all those playing a part in or wishing to understand the practice and dilemmas of humanitarian aid in the 1990s

The Politics and Policies of Relief, Aid and Reconstruction Fulvio Attina, 2012-10-15 Disaster policies present a new challenge to the practitioners and students of global politics this book explains how political science enriches the contribution of the social sciences to the study of disaster relief aid and reconstruction following the major disaster events both natural and man made of recent times

The Challenge of Conflict: International Law Responds Ustina Dolgopol, Judith G. Gardam, 2006-03-29 The papers in this collection bring together a wide and diverse range of viewpoints to consider how the catastrophic consequences of deadly armed conflict can be addressed Commentators are drawn from the United Nations and its agencies key non governmental organisations world class academic circles senior members of government leading human rights lawyers and judges with experience in international criminal law These experts address deadly conflict in a comprehensive fashion covering all its stages the causes and prevention of conflict conflict resolution and peace building international criminal law and international humanitarian law and the role of the United Nations humanitarian organisations and peacekeepers in post conflict situations This collection is for those with an existing interest and expertise in international law international relations peace studies and criminal justice as well as for those who wish to become conversant with emerging developments in these fields

Gender, Development, and Humanitarian Work Caroline Sweetman, 2001 While the difficulties of integrating gender equity goals into interventions are acknowledged the authors argue that gender blind responses can further endanger the survival of women and their families and their long term position in society and also deny them the opportunity of exercising their potential as peace builders

Protecting and Promoting Good Nutrition in Crisis and Recovery Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2005 Every year natural disasters armed conflicts and other forms of crisis adversely affect the lives of millions of people in the developing world In many countries families are forced to abandon their homes farms and villages access to adequate food becomes difficult and hardship contributes to high rates of malnutrition This book offers guidance to program planners and technicians in the fields of nutrition food security agriculture and community development in adopting a longer term perspective to addressing problems of household food insecurity and malnutrition during periods of crisis and recovery It provides a framework for an

implementation strategy that focuses on both saving lives in the short term and strengthening livelihood to ensure that households are less vulnerable to food and nutrition insecurity in the future The Politics of Aid to Burma Anne Decobert, 2015-11-19 For over sixty years conflict between state forces and armed ethnic groups was ongoing in parts of the borderlands of Burma Ethnic minority communities were subjected to systematic and widespread abuses by an increasingly complex patchwork of armed state and non state actors Populations in more remote and disputed border areas typically had little to no access to even basic healthcare and education services As part of its counter insurgency campaign the military state also historically restricted international humanitarian access to civilian populations in unstable border areas It was in this context that cross border aid to Burma had developed as an alternative mechanism for channelling assistance to populations denied aid through more conventional systems Yet by the late 2000s national and international changes had significant impacts on an aid debate which had important political and ethical implications Through an ethnographic study of a cross border aid organisation working on the Thailand Burma border this book focuses on the political and ethical dilemmas of humanitarian government It explores the ways in which aid systems come to be defined as legitimate or illegitimate humanitarian or un humanitarian in an international context that has witnessed the multiplication of often conflicting humanitarian systems and models It examines how an embodied history of violence can shape the worldviews and actions of local humanitarian actors as well as institutions created to mitigate human suffering It goes on to look at the complex and often invisible webs of local organisations international NGOs donors armed groups and other actors which can develop in a cross border and extra legal context a context where competing constructions of systems as legitimate or illegitimate are highlighted Exploring the history of humanitarianism from the local aid perspective of Burma this book will be of interest to students and scholars of Southeast Asian Studies Anthropology of Humanitarian Aid and Development Studies Aiding Recovery Joanna Macrae, 2001 Worldwide more and more governments have begun to buckle under a variety of strains including the ongoing pressures of economic crisis followed by structural adjustment programmes and the impact of declining legitimacy often resulting in the outbreak of civil war In this study of aid policy Joanna Macrae argues that the disintegration of state authority and civil order has created acute problems in aid management Largely ignored by major aid organizations insecurity and failures of governance are now the major obstacles to aid reaching those in most need International aid has traditionally assumed the existence of stable sovereign states capable of making policy In a number of developing countries including post conflict regimes like Cambodia Uganda or Kosovo this is no longer the case The big donor agencies have usually responded by suspending development aid and substituting some kind of emergency or relief assistance Now as the author shows there are calls to make relief more development oriented and for it to address the underlying conflicts which causes these crises But she concludes from her investigations on the ground in a number of countries that relief and development aid are very distinct processes In the absence of public policy making authorities aid becomes highly fragmented often inadequate in scale and certainly not capable of building local sustainability for particular programmes The international aid system she concludes faces real dilemmas and remains ill equipped to respond to the peculiar challenges of quasi statehood that characterize chronic political emergencies and their aftermath Refugee Crises, 1945-2000 Jan C. Jansen, Simone Lässig, 2020-10 This timely study explores how societies have responded to mass inflows of refugees between 1945 and 2000 Crisis Management Beyond the Humanitarian-Development Nexus Atsushi Hanatani, Oscar A. Gómez, Chigumi Kawaguchi, 2018-09-27 In addressing humanitarian crises the international community has long understood the need to extend beyond providing immediate relief and to engage with long term recovery activities and the prevention of similar crises in the future However this continuum from short term relief to rehabilitation and development has often proved difficult to achieve This book aims to shed light on the continuum of humanitarian crisis management particularly from the viewpoint of major bilateral donors and agencies Focusing on cases of armed conflicts and disasters the authors describe the evolution of approaches and lessons learnt in practice when moving from emergency relief to recovery and prevention of future crises Drawing on an extensive research project conducted by the Japan International Cooperation Agency Research Institute this book compares how a range of international organizations bilateral cooperation agencies NGOs and research institutes have approached the continuum in international humanitarian crisis management The book draws on six humanitarian crises case studies each resulting from armed conflict or natural disasters Timor Leste South Sudan the Syrian crisis Hurricane Mitch in Honduras the Indian Ocean earthquake and tsunami in Indonesia and Typhoon Yolanda The book concludes by proposing a common conceptual framework designed to appeal to different stakeholders involved in crisis management Following on from the World Humanitarian Summit where a new way of working on the humanitarian development nexus was highlighted as one of five major priority trends this book is a timely contribution to the debate which should interest researchers of humanitarian studies conflict and peace studies and disaster risk management

Eroding Local Capacity Monica Kathina Juma, Astri Suhrke, 2002 Eroding Local Capacity is a critical examination of the interplay between international and local actors operating in the humanitarian arena in Africa All sides emphasise the need to build local capacity for humanitarian action yet the results have not been substantial Even long term semi permanent emergencies have generated little local capacity to assist and protect the victims of violence displacement and related deprivations In some cases whatever local capacity did exist has been overwhelmed by the international aid presence Why is this so What is the case for a more even division of labour between North and South in this area and why is it so difficult to bring about The book focuses on cases from East Africa and the Horn It considers institutional capacity in the public and private sector as well as legal and social norms of humanitarian action The authors are African and Nordic scholars who worked together on the NORAD supported project over a 3 year period Preliminary conclusions were discussed at seminars organized by the Centre for Foreign Relations Dar es Salaam the School of Government at the University of the Western

Cape Cape Town and the Chr Michelsen Institute Bergen
