Mau Mau is waging war against the white government and the two brothers and their family need to decide where their loyalties lie For the practical Kamau the choice is simple but for Njoroge the scholar the dream of progress through learning is a hard one to give up The first East African novel published in English Weep Not Child explores the effects of the infamous Mau Mau uprising on the lives of ordinary men and women and on one family in particular For more than seventy years Penguin has been the leading publisher of classic literature in the English speaking world With more than 1 700 titles Penguin Classics represents a global bookshelf of the best works throughout history and across genres and disciplines Readers trust the series to provide authoritative texts enhanced by introductions and notes by distinguished scholars and contemporary authors as well as up to date translations by award winning translators The Cambridge Companion to the African Novel F. Abiola Irele,2009-07-23 Africa s strong tradition of storytelling has long been an expression of an oral narrative culture African writers such as Amos Tutuola Naguib Mahfouz Wole Soyinka and J M Coetzee have adapted these older forms to develop and enhance the genre of the novel in a shift from the oral mode to print Comprehensive in scope these new essays cover the fiction in the European languages from North Africa and Africa south of the Sahara as well as in Arabic They highlight the themes and styles of the African novel through an examination of the works that have either attained canonical status an entire chapter is devoted to the work of Chinua Achebe or can be expected to do so Including a guide to further reading and a chronology this is the ideal starting point for students of African and world literatures

Critiquing the Postcolonial Construct in Chinua Achebe's Novels Ranjana Das Sarkhel,2018-11-21 Chinua Achebe s novels have always been read as texts from an erstwhile colonised African nation interpreted within the parameters suggested by postcolonial theorists The confines of postcolonial readings have raised questions about when the postcolonial period would end so that writers would no longer need to write back to the empire or rewrite their histories This work explores how Achebe s novels articulate his knowledge of his own people and the manner in which he participates in the politics of representation He critiques the postcolonial methodology and seeks out recovers and provides an alternative narrative of the postcolonial experience and its aftermath even as he seems to be moving beyond it Achebe s narratives do not conform to the postcolonial constructs of history as telling rather than recalling and of nations in terms of states rather than people Achebe combines the techniques available to historians documentation with those of novelists the imaginative re creation of events for his fictional evocation of the past He emphasises both the African artists role in helping to create a more egalitarian society and that of the act of storytelling as a shaping force in people s lives As he negotiates between his narrative form and realistic subject matter Achebe puts forward a powerful critique of colonisation and its aftermath Achebe represents a canonical voice in the emerging discourse of writers struggling to break free from the clichéd world of anti imperialism and decolonisation The River Between Ngugi wa Thiong'o,2015-04-28 A 50th anniversary edition of one of the most powerful novels by the great Kenyan author and Nobel Prize nominee A legendary work of African literature this

Literature as History Clement Ifedilichukwu Onyemena, 1999 A comparison between the novels of Chinua Achebe and James Ngugi ANNE. GLENNIE, 1974 Narrating the Nation-State in the African Novel Abdelkader Babkar, 2018-06-21

The idea of the nation or nationalism in relation to Africa and African literature has been widely dealt with in modern African literature arising from the fact that writers are bent on expressing their concern about the future of their countries Chinua Achebe Ayi Kwei Armah Ngugi wa Thiong'o and Kofi Awoonor are such writers who have made great artistic efforts to portray an Afrotopia or at best viable socio political systems in the wake of colonial situation The present work aims to examine closely these novelists ideological convictions as they are expressed in their fictions and often shown to be in opposition to the practices established by the state apparatuses in place This book shows how the African situation has been characterised in the African novels by both a common continental experience and a number of facts that dramatise the historical predicament of slavery colonialism and a problematic independence These representations carry dialogical voices which underpin the authoritative voice of the authors The narratives of the nation are shown to be ambivalent for they seem to act in defence of the novelists culture yet they jettison its very quintessence by the sceptical view they reflect about its significance in modern times Caught between the imperatives of modernity and the nostalgic drives of the past the novelists are somehow drawn to condemn the metropolis and to celebrate it at the same time The point is to accept the construction of the nation state in connection with universal concepts developed by the Western world and Europe essentially The different utopias offered by the writers under scrutiny cannot be divorced from the theory and practice that have led to the construction of European models of nation states Hence our reliance on important scholarly works in the field particularly Elie Kedourie's Nationalism Eric Hobsbawm's Nations and Nationalism Since 1780 Ernest Gellner's Nations and Nationalism But for the theoretical link between nationalism and literary interpretation Benedict Anderson's Imagined Communities Homi Bhabha's Nation and Narration and The Location of Culture Edward Said's Orientalism and Culture and Imperialism and Bakhtin's The dialogical Imagination are fundamental supports for my discussion Critics that have approached this subject are restrictive in number but I have taken account of the studies carried out by James Ogude on Ngugi Leif Lorentzon on Armah for example or general works like Abiola Irele's The African Experience in Literature and Ideology or Kanneh Kadiatu's African Identities amongst others to substantiate the discussion Due appreciation of the different styles used by the writers is expressed here from a modernism used by early Armah and Awoonor to the realism of Achebe and Marxist populist treatment of fiction and nation building of Ngugi as well as the essentialist slant that can be studied in Armah's later fiction. Concepts such as hybridity, ambivalence, liminality developed by Bhabha are useful elements of analysis in the examination of the evolution of prose fiction in Africa from the early writings of Achebe to the later works of Armah and Ngugi. They allow us to see how the African novelists produce meanings that underscore the realities and difficulties met in the construction of stable and genuinely independent nation states in Africa.

Crabtracks, 2021-12-28. The essays in this collection celebrate the signal achievement of Dieter Riemenschneider in helping found and consolidate the study of postcolonial anglophone literatures in Germany and Europe. As well as poems, a short story, drawings of the Indian scene, the first and abiding focus of this scholar's work, and letters of reminiscence, one quite grave, there are revealing contributions of a literary-historical nature on the establishment of anglophone, especially African, literatures as an academic discipline within Germany, the UK, and Northern Europe generally, as well as a group of searching reflections on such topics of postcolonial import as globalization and the applicability of models to the literature of the indigene in Canada and Australia. The largest section is devoted to individual topics, each treatment implicitly keyed to approaches to the teaching of New Literatures texts. Writers covered include Anita Desai, landscape and memory, Salman Rushdie, painting in The Moor's Last Sigh, Charlotte Brontë, imperial discourse in Jane Eyre, Derek Walcott, Omeros, and cultural cohabitation, and Witi Ihimaera, his rewriting of Katherine Mansfield. Topics dealt with include music and radio in West Africa, the African literary hit parade, the New Zealand prose poem, Canadian and Australian war fiction, the Middle Passage in the American and Caribbean novel, Paul Theroux's uneasy relations with V. S. Naipaul, and the colonial discourse of illness and recuperation. The volume closes with Dieter Riemenschneider's very first and most recent critical essays: the one, a classic on Mulk Raj Anand; the other, a challenging and doubtless controversial thesis on postcolonial minority writing. A select bibliography of Riemenschneider's work, books, edited publications, journal articles, and book contributions, reviews, and broadcasts rounds off this substantial collection.
