How Do Hurricane Katrina's Winds Blow? Liza Treadwell, 2014-03-26 The disproportionate effect of Hurricane Katrina on African Americans was an outcome created by law and societal construct not chance This book takes a hard look at racial stratification in American today and debunks the myth that segregation is a thing of the past An outstanding resource for students of African American history government policy sociology and human rights as well as readers interested in socioeconomics in the United States today this book examines why the divisions between the areas heavily damaged by Hurricane Katrina and those left unscathed largely coincided with the color lines in New Orleans neighborhoods and establishes how African Americans have suffered for 400 years under an oppressive system that has created a permanent underclass of second class citizenship Rather than focusing on the Katrina disaster itself the author presents significant evidence of how government policy and structure as well as societal mores permitted and sanctioned the dehumanization of African Americans purposefully placing them in disaster prone areas particularly those in New Orleans The historical context is framed within the construct of Hurricane Katrina and other hurricane catastrophes in New Orleans demonstrating that Katrina was not an anomaly For readers unfamiliar with the ugly existence of segregation in modern day America this book will likely shock and outrage as it sounds a call to both citizens and government to undertake the challenges we still face as a nation

The Concept of Race in Natural and Social Science E. Nathaniel Gates, 2014-05-01 Explores the concept of race The term race which originally denoted genealogical or class identity has in the comparatively brief span of 300 years taken on an entirely new meaning In the wake of the Enlightenment it came to be applied to social groups This ideological transformation coupled with a dogmatic insistence that the groups so designated were natural and not socially created gave birth to the modern notion of races as genetically distinct entities The results of this view were the encoding of race and racial hierarchies in law literature and culture How racial categories facilitate social control The articles in the series demonstrate that the classification of humans according to selected physical characteristics was an arbitrary decision that was not based on valid scientific method They also examine the impact of colonialism on the propagation of the concept and note that racial categorization is a powerful social force that is often used to promote the interests of dominant social groups Finally the collection surveys how laws based on race have been enacted around the world to deny power to minority groups A multidisciplinary resource This collection of outstanding articles brings multiple perspectives to bear on race theory and draws on a wider ranger of periodicals than even the largest library usually holds Even if all the articles were available on campus chances are that a student would have to track them down in several libraries and microfilm collections Providing of course that no journals were reserved for graduate students out for binding or simply missing This convenient set saves students substantial time and effort by making available all the key articles in one reliable source Authoritative commentary The series editor has put together a balanced selection of the most significant works accompanied by expert commentary A general introduction gives important background information and outlines fundamental issues current scholarship and scholarly controversies Introductions to individual volumes put the articles in context and draw attention to germinal ideas and major shifts in the field After reading the material even a beginning student will have an excellent grasp of the basics of the subject
